

Samuel Sachs II

Class of 1953

After graduating from Harvard, Sam Sachs entered the art world, where he was the Director of the Minneapolis Institute of Art and the Detroit Institute of the Arts. In 1997, he was named Director of The Frick Collection in New York. While at the Frick, Sam was credited with making the museum more accessible to the public while attracting increasingly diverse exhibitions.

