Building Capacity for Involvement:

Our Open House, parent conferences, and literacy activities are intentional about providing ways that parents can better support their student achievement at home. Other community learning opportunities will be shared in the community for our families to attend remotely if needed. Specific activities include:

- Information will be provided to parents about special activities, events, and programs through ConnectEd, the school website, the school Facebook page.
- Teachers will provide communication with parents through Dojo/Remind accounts, phone calls, email, conferences, communication folders, notes and newsletters.
- Limited English proficiency homes will have an interpreter provided upon request by the parent or teacher.
- Reading logs and student achievement in our reading program will be shared with parents by our instructional staff.

Accessibility: Parents are always welcome at our school. We encourage parent involvement in our school meetings and academic learning nights.

Funding: Title One parent engagement funds are used to purchase materials and text that allow our staff to showcase best practices in literacy, mathematics, and science.
