Since 2013, Gateway has been our village, our community, our family. When Moira was born, we didn't even know schools like Gateway existed, and now we can't even imagine life without this magical place where kids like Moira are safe, supported, nurtured, loved, and seen. The teachers, therapists, and school staff make that magic with very few resources and a whole lotta love and dedication. There are so many challenges for families raising children with multiple special needs and vulnerabilities, so there is a lot of room for fear and heartache and isolation. Gateway is the antidote, the sigh of relief. I try to explain it by saying that it is like dropping off a newborn baby at daycare for 22 years. Not stressful at all, right? What would you need to feel good about leaving them there with very limited ability to advocate? You'd probably say that the people would have to be the absolute best kind of people.

Well, that's Gateway. ❤️
