Being a new mom has its scary moments. Especially when it comes time for your little one(s) to start school for the first time. Once you add a dash of special needs to the mix, it makes things a little more worrisome than before. Finding the right school with the right staff to start my little man off was not only important to me, but also for any new special needs parent.

Patience, kind, understanding, loving, and it feels like HOME! These are all of the things that come to mind when I think of Gateway. I knew from the moment my son walked through those double doors on his first day of school, that he was in the right place! The teachers and staff have been nothing short of amazing the entire time my son spent walking down Gateway's hallway. The love that they show for these kids is truly unmatched!

I will forever be grateful for this school, his loving teachers and the path that they set for my autistic son. Nothing compares to the smile upon his face each day and the joy I know he felt while being apart of their family.

Thank You always!
