OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

65 1942 - 2007

Dear Alumni, Parents and Friends,

It is difficult to believe that we are well immersed into the first semester of the 2007-2008 academic year at Fairfield Prep. It seems like yesterday that I was writing to you and introducing myself as the new President. I have discovered there is a great deal of love and support for Prep, which is quite palpable and contagious. As a Jesuit, it is hard for me to imagine having a better job than the one I now have here. I am very blessed. I am so grateful that we – you and I – join in this important work together.

As a school, we are truly blessed with motivated and talented students and a community of faculty, staff, families, and alumni, all of whom are central to our success and our mission. In the pages of this issue you will see stories about some amazing members of the Prep community who demonstrate "finding God in all things." (St. Ignatius of Loyola)

This past June a team of ten Prep faculty and administrators attended the JSEA's (Jesuit Secondary Educational Association) Colloquium, held at the Jesuits' Xavier University in Cincinnati. The Colloquium occurs every three years, and representatives from all the Jesuit high schools in the United States, Canada, and Ireland are invited to share best practices, enjoy collegueship, and plan strategically for the future of Jesuit education. Our own Principal, Dr. Robert Perrotta, gave an excellent keynote address on future challenges in Jesuit education. Bob then received the JSEA President's award for his outstanding dedication, leadership, and service in the ministry of Jesuit secondary education. You can well imagine how proud we were to watch him receive this prestigious award in front of our 500 colleagues.

Great things are already happening, as you would expect, this semester at Prep. We are very pleased to announce recognition of three Prep seniors as Semi-Finalists and seven Prep seniors as Commended Students in the National Merit Scholarship Program. We are quite proud of their academic recognition, which is a testament to Prep's strong curriculum and disciplined college preparation. This fall, approximately 120 colleges and universities are visiting our school, meeting with prospective students. Our students continue to achieve greatness inside and outside the classroom.

A Letter from the Director of Alumni Relations

Joe Miller '76

Dear Friends,

For the past eight years one of the more enjoyable aspects of my job has been the publication of Prep Today. I have always worn two hats: one as Alumni Relations Director and one as Communications Director. In a world where communications media such as a website are so important, Prep has hired a person whose job will be focused on school communications and my role as editor of Prep Today will be assumed by Colleen Adams. I will continue to have a loud voice directed to our alumni around the world however Colleen will be the new editor: I welcome her and wish her all the best.

Prep's 65 year history has been a work in progress. While never wavering from the mission of Jesuit secondary education, Prep has successfully incorporated all the technological changes necessary to a modern school. This fall Prep's most recent 223 alumni began their collegiate careers all over the country and they are as well prepared as the 65 classes before them. Computers may get smaller and more powerful and the internet may get larger and more pervasive but the reading, writing and research skills these young alumni honed at Prep will allow for the same successes as their predecessors.

Mark Twain once said, "Nothing remains the same. When a man goes back to look at the house of his childhood, it has always shrunk: there is no instance of such a house being as big as the picture in memory and imagination calls for." Let your memories of Fairfield Prep be wide and wonderful: come back to visit any time.

Warm regards,

Joe Miller '76

Deirdre Magner, Prep Teacher, travels the Camino de Santiago

I have never been to Fatima, Lourdes, Medjugori or the Holy Land. My faith is strong I think, but I am not the retreat type. And I am definitely not a pilgrim. So how did I come to be walking 750 kilometers (420 miles) across northern Spain following the Camino de Santiago? That is a question I would ask myself many, many times.

Galicia O Cebreiro

Leon Astorga catedral altarpiece

As I stepped off the bus in Roncesvalles I lost all sense of where I was. A little more than 24 hours before I had been in Granada – 38 degrees (92F), sunny, azure sky, the Alhambra – a familiar Spain that I knew well. This strange place – 15 degrees (48F), green, verdant mountains, misty rain and fog looked more like Ireland than Spain. I followed all the other people with mochilas (backpacks) – a dead giveaway for pilgrims – into the ancient stone building which served as an office. There, at long tables clearly set up to handle large amounts of people at once, we filled out a form explaining our mode of transportation on the Camino (a pie, a bicicleta, a caballo – on foot, bicycle or horseback), showed our passport and for six Euro, were given our *credencial (*the Pilgrim's most prized possession) and a bed for the night. Our instructions were clear: make a dinner reservation and go the albergue. I walked into the albergue with my backpack having no idea whatsoever what to expect.

The Camino de Santiago has been in use as a "Way" to the Atlantic Coast of Spain for more than a thousand years. The Celts believed there were sacred places along the Way and traversed it as part of their rites and rituals; the Romans used it as a trade route and were struck with awe at the sight of the magnificent sun being swallowed up by the vast ocean. Sections of today's Camino include long walks along Roman built roads. According to legend, Jacob bar Zebedee, brother of John, the Evangelist, preached in the Iberian peninsula after the Crucifixion. Later he returned to Rome where he was martyred by Herod Agrippa I. His body was left outside the city walls as carrion but was recovered by two of his disciples who took it to a boat that was found without a crew but ready for a long distance voyage. Guided by angels, they set sail and soon came to the Galician coast of Iberia. Moving inland, they buried him in obscurity on a hilltop where the location of his remains became lost in time.

The location was revealed, early in the 9th century to a hermit named Pelayo who witnessed the appearance of a star in the forest, similar to that of the Star of Bethlehem, marking the location of the tomb. The site was called Campostela (field of stars), a small church was built, and holy pilgrimage shortly ensued. Some of the more famous pilgrims throughout the centuries have included Charlemagne, El Cid, Felipe, Prince of Asturias, actress Shirley Maclaine and Jenna Bush.

No discussion of the Prep Spanish teacher, Deirdre Magner, shows some Prep pride while hiking in Spain.

Camino de Santiago is complete without mention of the Codex Calixtinus. This vitally important medieval manuscript written at the end of the 12th century has been attributed to a variety of authors, particularly Aymeric Picaud, the French cleric and Secretary to Pope Calixtus II. Consisting of five "books" which detail the prayers, Mass and Ritual of St. James, the burial and subsequent "finding" of his remains, miracles attributed to St.James and the oldest pilgrim's guide in existence. Pope Calixtus raised the status of the city of Santiago to Archdiocese II and was a stalwart and passionate supporter of both Santiago and pilgrimage. As a result, making pilgrimages to Santiago de Compostela achieved its pinnacle of popularity during the Middle Ages, particularly during the 12th, 13th and 14th centuries.

One of the hallmarks of the Camino is the willingness of peregrinos to help and share with each other. I met people who were a wealth of information about the Camino and I was always willing to take their advice. (How far should one plan to walk in a week? Where are the best albergues? What cafes are open early for breakfast?) Average 20 km a day for the first week, I was advised. The second week, 25km per day. After that, as many as you like. That was sound advice. I had broken in my hiking boots walking all over Madrid. However, I had never walked 12-14 miles a day. Blisters set in quickly. I quickly learned how to use a needle, thread and iodine to open and disinfect a blister to make it manageable for walking the next day. Every pilgrim is also a surgeon.

Since being declared The First European Cultural Itinerary (1987) and a UNESCO World Heritage Site (1993, 1998) the Camino has experienced a resurgence in popularity particularly in Europe. In order to aid and accommodate the many peregrinos, numerous government organizations, religious groups and private individuals have set up albergues in many town along the route. When a pilgrim presents his credencial, he receives a stamp and a date indicating the place he has stopped or stayed. This serves not only as a wonderful momento for the pilgrim, but as information to the hospitaleros as to how far and by what means (on foot, by bicycle, on horseback) that pilgrim has traveled in a day. Preference is given to those peregrinos traveling on foot, then to those on horseback or bicycle. For a meager fee (usually between €1 and €7 EU) a pilgrim gets a bed usually including a pillow and a hot shower. If all the beds are filled, there is usually space on the floor for no charge. Some albergues will keep 2 or 3 beds in reserve for late arriving pilgrims, but generally speaking it is not possible to "reserve" a space. They are given out on a first come, first served basis.

In addition to having a bed, each albergue has a place for pilgrims to wash and dry clothes. This is usually a wash sink and a clothesline, although occasionally there is a washing machine and perhaps even a dryer. Many albergues have a kitchen as well so that pilgrims can cook dinner and breakfast. Some of the most memorable meals were when a group of virtual strangers got together in a kitchen to prepare, cook, eat and clean up together. (insert here about breaking tooth?)

I learned many important lessons on my first day of the Camino. I learned that while climbing can be tiring, you can stop to rest and catch your breath and keep going. The descent is much more arduous. The steep and rocky terrain taxes your feet, ankles, knees and hips. If your feet move at all in your hiking boots, this is where the dreaded ampollas (blisters) begin. The weight of your backpack plays a vital role in how your body holds up to the Camino. A walking stick is a great asset to the descent. It helps you to balance and un-weights your feet and knees.

Throughout the trip, the terrain changed dramatically. We traversed vineyards and farms of fruit trees. I had heard about a fuente de vino, a wine fountain but thought that I must have misunderstood. Sure enough, shortly beyond the village of Los Arcos, we came upon a fountain in a vineyard where you could fill your water bottle from the tap – with wine! What a great country! It was a pity that I arrived there at about 8 am. Extremely poor planning on my part! When I do the Camino again, I will be sure to arrive there later in the day!

In this part of Spain the Camino meanders through towns, follows the road, and then veers off through the fields. The scenery is varied and interesting. A Pilgrim can have his credencial stamped in any number of cafes, bars or churches and of course each evening in the albergue. Not only does it serve as a momento of all the places one has stopped, but it allows the hospitaleros to know which pilgrims walk and how far they have come. Some of the smaller albergues reserve their limited space for those on foot. If there is still room later in the day, cyclists may then take the remaining beds.

After the discovery of the remains of Santiago in the 9th century, the Camino became primarily a religious pilgrimage. As a result, it passes through towns big and small with important churches. One of the most impressive milestones is the city of Burgos and its magnificent Gothic cathedral. Here one finds the remains of El Cid Campeonato the great warrior of medieval Spain. Whether one eschews the Hollywood romanticized version of the legend of El Cid, or prefers mercenary, "fight for anyone who pays" version, seeing his tomb and some of his original possessions and writings is well worth the visit.

On the Camino, one's sense of time and distance changes radically. Everything slows down. You look at the world in a completely different way. With all of your possessions in your mochila, and given the sometimes rough and rugged terrain (including hard, concrete city sidewalks) one can only average abut 3 km per hour. As you walk across the meseta approaching and leaving the city of Leon, you see the mountains approaching for days before you actually arrive at them. There is an incredible sense of accomplishment to standing at the summit of a high peak, looking back for as far as the eye can see and saying to yourself, "I have walked every step of that Way." There is seldom a sense of being in a hurry. You listen to the rhythm of your own body. How do you feel, do you need to rest? To eat? To drink? Do you feel like stopping to take a photo, chat with a cat, admire a view? On the Camino you can walk with the "friends" you meet along the way or you can walk alone. You can meditate, sing, talk to yourself, laugh, cry or just be silent. People are respectful, helpful, sociable and kind. It is a microcosm of idyllic life. Your needs are simple: water, shelter and food. You meet a variety of people along the way. Some spend just a brief but perhaps important period of time with you, others are more permanent. Some people help you on your journey, others you will help. Some of the people you encounter will have a profound impact on your Camino, others will drift in and out barely making an impression. You give, you take, you share.

Chance encounters can have a lasting impact. You never know when you are going to run into someone who will touch your life. Or when a seemingly minor decision can change everything. Everyone you meet on the Camino greets you. From the Pyrenees to the Atlantic Ocean, your signature backpack, walking stick and shell identify you as a Pilgrim making your way "poco a poco" (little by little) to the ultimate destination of the crypt at the Cathedral in Santiago de Compostela. And all along the way, Spanish people smile and wish you, "Buen Camino" because although you are a complete stranger, you are on a mission that everyone clearly understands. Other pilgrims whom you've seen on your Way, may pause to chat with you as they walk by. One's nationality is of general interest and possibly a topic of conversation, but not a barrier. Language is no barrier whatsoever. Most of the people on the Camino speak two or three or four languages and you can usually find one in common. If not, then you can always find a third person who shares a common language. And if you really need to speak to someone, you manage!

Age is of no importance either. The youngest Pilgrim was an angelic 8 month old baby with golden curls and apple cheeks whose parents had walked with her from Holland. There were single people, couples, groups, college students, retired people, people on holiday, people who wanted to be together, people who wanted to be alone, families, friends, acquaintances,. And there were the people with whom you made friends.

It is impossible to aptly describe the friendships formed on the Camino de Santiago. Forged by long hours of conversation and silence over rugged terrain and tempered by moments of incredible beauty, awe, laughter and pain, you share in the unique and personal journey of another human being.

After 30 days of arduous walking I had arrived in Santiago de Compostela. It was at once exhilarating, triumphant and yet, sad. The long anticipated arrival also signals the end of the journey, or does it? In various places throughout the Camino, I had seen the sign, Lo importante no es que llegar, sino que te llegue. The meaning is that it is not the arrival in Santiago that is the most important, but rather the journey. In an albergue in Los Altos, the hospitalero told me that Santiago de Compostela is not a destination but a starting point. I understand that now.

Although I was unaware of it at the time, my Camino had begun in 2003 when I first heard about it and couldn't get it out of my mind. After a number of odd "Camino related" coincidences that kept bringing it back to the forefront of my consciousness, all the pieces finally fell together this year to make the Pilgrimage. Although I had never "backpacked" in my life and am not a hiker, I was inexplicably drawn to this "crazy" adventure. I've stopped asking myself "why" because I now know that "why" doesn't matter. One does not complete the Camino without recognizing the omnipresence of God in everyday life. It surrounds you, touches you and leaves an indelible mark on you. Our lives are so hectic, chaotic with the need to accomplish and have so much. Just finding the time and a quiet place to listen seems to be incredibly challenging. The Camino provides both the time and the place.

"You don't find the Camino," Alex, a friend en route, had told me, "The Camino finds you." "It doesn't let you go and you will come here again." Alex is right. ¡Buen Camino!

Prep Rows to a Historical Beginning

Article and photography by Steve Mott, P'08, '11

Success in athletic endeavors is an important and coveted benchmark for fulfillment of the Jesuit mission of building young men in body, mind and character. Prep's prowess in sports during the just-completed 2006-2007 school year provided President John Hanwell, SJ, Principal Dr. Perotta, and Athletic Director Bob Harris with a rich harvest of athletic achievements that the school could build on for the future: Three state championships (lacrosse, swimming, and hockey), strong performances in basketball and football, and a winning percentage in every sports program save one.

But perhaps the most remarkable achievement in Prep sports in the past year was in a brand new sport—rowing. The two-year-old crew program placed a lightweight boat (under 155 pounds) with eight rowers and a coxswain in the high school national championships in early June held in Cincinnati, Ohio in just its second year of racing! By all accounts, no program had ever placed an eight-man boat into national competition in less than five or six years, yet Fairfield Prep's inspiring performance made history, catapulting us onto the national stage for this fast-growing, typically collegiate sport. The story of how it all happened provides inspiration for all.

"These young men came seemingly out of nowhere to burst upon the national scene," says Prep Athletic Director Bob Harris. "It happened so fast it was hard to keep up with the program's growth, ambitions and success. It's really a very different sport than we've ever tackled, with year-round activities and lots of travel and expensive boats. But we watched how determined and devoted these young men are, how they grew their program from 14 to over 80 rowers, and how they turned unskilled rowers into machines. These boats really move."

In our first heat Friday at the National Championship, the nine-man crew, eight rowers and a coxswain, pulled their best time ever in the 2,000 meter race of 6:19:18, less than 21 seconds off the leader. And so it was the rest of the regatta, with our team putting in a valiant effort but off the qualifying time for the next heat. With our carbon fiber Vespoli racing shell loaded back onto the trailer for the long ride back to Connecticut, our historic crew placed 17th of the 25 teams from across the nation that qualified for these races, and more than 60 light weight eight crews who competed from across the nation to get there.

Humble Beginnings

Most Prep alumni are probably not even aware that a crew program had been established—much less competing at the highest levels in just two years. The genesis of the program was the desire of a handful of Prep sophomores and their fathers to find a new sports program that could provide a new competitive athletic experience to students who might be good athletes, but not good enough to make the varsities in the conventional sports. From this modest premise, Fairfield Prep crew was born in the fall of 2005.

That first fall season in 2005 included a dozen students trying the sport. Word of their exploits spread, however, and by spring, another two dozen students signed up for the spring season. Coach Whelley got the team into more and bigger events. Soon, at the regattas, the parents were putting up a hospitality tent, grilling for hungry rowers and their families, who would often stand in the cold and rain for the 7-8 hours that many events required.

Finally, at one local race, one of the boats won first place, and another—using a boat borrowed from Sacred Heart—placed third. Both crews got their first medals, and this first taste of success on the water began to infect the entire team. "One coach came over to us and said, 'Where did you guys come from?'" Whelley remembers. "It wasn't a huge revelation, but it was an important one. We were already making an impact."

The Ultimate Challenge

Rowing exacts an immense challenge on the individual as well. "This is a sport where over hundreds of strokes in a given race, if you miss just one stroke, everyone else in the boat knows it," say Tom O'Connell, coach of St. Ignatius (San Francisco)-which won the US Nationals in 2006, and also won the world championships at Henley-on-the-Thames a month later. "You feel like hell, because there's no place to hide. But everybody does it, so everyone forgives it. That's because you have to compete as a team, and you have to work completely together in order to succeed. You're never alone out there on the water."

Mental discipline, such as whether a rower is centered and aligned properly on his seat, and physical challenges and varying stroke rates several times in races—all the while trying to keep eight oars functioning as one—takes many hours of practice. Physical stamina, to get the little extra oomph in the strokes at the end of a race, when your body is screaming for relief, is developed only through constant and intense conditioning (including a multitude of sessions on the ubiquitous 'erg' machines that simulate timed rowing. But hardly a race goes by without a supreme test of emotional toughness, such as when an oar 'catches a crab' and bounces off the water instead of smooth entry and exit. "Nobody rows harder than when your boat catches a crab," Turner notes. "You just hit another gear in order to recover, and not infrequently you do!"

St. Joe's (Philadelphia) Head Coach Bill Lamb adds, "There's no tougher sport that exists, in my view. It draws on everything you have, everything you are, and everything you can be."

How Crew Programs Pay Off

At prominent crew programs such as St. Ignatius, St. Joe's, Canisius (Buffalo) and Chaminade (Long Island), rowers in the top boats are heavily recruited by prestigious colleges with competitive crew programs. The extra help students gained from rowing help these unusual athletes to gain admission and consideration and financial support at rates far more prevalent than for all other sports, with the possible exception of lacrosse. Many of these top programs—especially at the Jesuit schools like St. Ignatius and St. Joe's—also maintain stiff demands on GPAs for crew participants, seemingly applying the discipline of rowing to the rest of student life.

A Spring Season Not Soon to be Forgotten

The fall season for most crew programs tends to run at a less-intense 'club sport' level, at longer rowing distances, and with an emphasis on getting experience and training newer rowers. But in autumn, 2006 a trip to a major regatta on the Schuykil River in Philadelphia allowed Prep to take the measure of more powerful teams. Nearly two dozen rowers spent the winter doing regular conditioning workouts in preparation for upcoming and more competitive spring season. And several highly competitive regattas were scheduled to heighten the measure Fairfield Prep would take of the rest of high school rowing.

The program grew to 50 young men anxious to compete by the time the season opened in late March, but heavy rains (including April 13, when it rained more than seven inches in a single day!) wiped out many early. One event that did run, the second Manny Flick race in Philadelphia in late March, did come off, with four Prep boats graciously hosted by St. Joe's at their elegant new boathouse. Prep's showing in this event was quite modest, however, in their first race since the previous fall, and Coach Turner mixing lightweights with heavies to make the boats as competitive across-the-board as possible. No one in Philadelphia that day took Fairfield Prep seriously.

Later in April, and early May, they raced in a couple of local regattas, also in mixed boats, with no particularly distinguishing performances. Then, on May 20th, the New England/Mid-Atlantic Regionals at Lake Quinsigamond (near Worchester, MA.) arrived. Coach Turner believed that his best chance in these races would be to field his fastest lightweight-only boat in a single heat of six entrants. The top three finishers would qualify for the Nationals, so Prep just needed to beat three other lightweight teams to move on. Turner thought they had a decent shot at that lofty goal.

The lightweight #1 boat (called "Jesuit Thunder") had an added incentive to row the race of their young lives on this windswept and stormy day. They were racing against Norwalk, a nearby club whose boat included a Fairfield Prep junior—someone who publicly viewed the Prep program as a bit of a joke to that point. Moreover, Norwalk had qualified for and participated in the nationals for four out of the past five years. And they expected to make the top three finishers again in 2007.

After a long rain delay, with darkness approaching, the regatta officials began to cancel 1- and 2-person races. At 7:30 p.m., the last time a new race could be started, the lightweight eights made it off the starting line, and rowed frantically down the 2000 meter course. Massachusetts-based Wayland-Weston and Lowell moved into solid leads, while Prep and Norwalk matched stroke for stroke all the way down the course in a fight for third place. With 250 meters to go, approaching the boathouses and hundreds of onlookers crowded around the finish line, Prep's lightweight boat dug deep, and maintained a half-boat lead over the desperate Norwalk team across the finish line.

Gasping for breath and sprawling sideways from elated exhaustion, these nine boys had just rowed the best race in the short history of the program, running the distance in just six and a half minutes, and cutting an incredible 30 seconds off of their best time up to that point in the season! They had refused to be beaten by Norwalk, and had qualified for the nationals!

Back to the racing. Friday's opening day race was delayed for several hours by a terrific thunderstorm that destroyed dozens of hospitality tents on-site, including all three Prep hospitality tents. After yet another long day of waiting to race, the boys rode a nice tailwind, trimming another 16 seconds off their Regional time, and cutting10-12 seconds off their previous time differences with Wayland-Weston and Lowell from the Regionals. Alas, they were not among the top six teams moving automatically to the semi-finals.

In the repechage (repeat, or second chance) round Saturday morning, this time racing into a strong headwind, the boys faded, missing out on being one of the other six teams advancing to the semi-finals. But they did qualify for a "C-round" race late that afternoon. After studying back at the rower-family homes for several hours, the boys returned and rowed a spirited, but disappointing (to them, anyway) fifth place.

"Here were these boys, clearly exhausted from a crushing weekend in the middle of finals, experiencing their first taste of competing at a national level, sitting there studying and helping each other work through the math problems they were expecting to be tested on the next day," Mott (?) recalls. "Some of the boys knew the material, and some of them needed help. They just worked together, in great spirits and comradeship, doing what had to be done. It was impossible not to be immensely proud of them. They were just a terrific reflection on the school!"

Moving to the next stage

The boys returned to Fairfield, completed their finals and attended the teams year end dinner a few days later. At this season finale, Manager DeMarco P'08, '09 announced that the school had agreed to co-fund the cost of the new, second boat purchased by the parents in early April (this one named "Jesuit Lightning"). In addition, DeMarco added, the school promised additional financial support for the coming spring season in 2008 and beyond.

So if we are in your area, or on your next visit back to Prep, stop by and take a look for yourself. You will see any number of extraordinarily driven and determined Prep sons rowing, working out on erg machines, or teaching younger classmates about the brotherhood of Prep and rowing.

Fr. Boughton honored at President's Reception

Rev. Jack Hanwell, S.J. welcomed benefactors, alumni and staff to the President's Reception on Sunday, September 16th in Kartovsky Quad. During the reception, the Library and Academic Center was officially named in honor of former President Rev. Michael Boughton, S.J. for his ten years of leadership, guidance and dedication from 1996-2006.

Colin participated in the Barnum Roadshow which brightened the day for patients in area nursing homes.

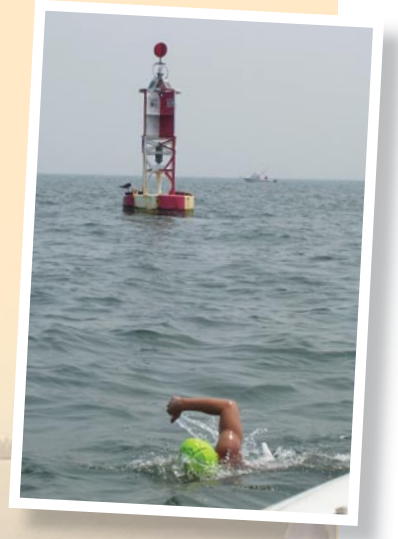

Colin Nevins '0? was Prep's representative for the P.T. Barnum Festival's King/Queen competition. He was awarded the title of Prince. He met many proud Prep alumni at the numerous events he attended. Colin helped the festival raise money for the Kennedy Center and Feroleto Center, visited 20 nursing homes on a three-day Road Show, and helped promote civic pride in Bridgeport.

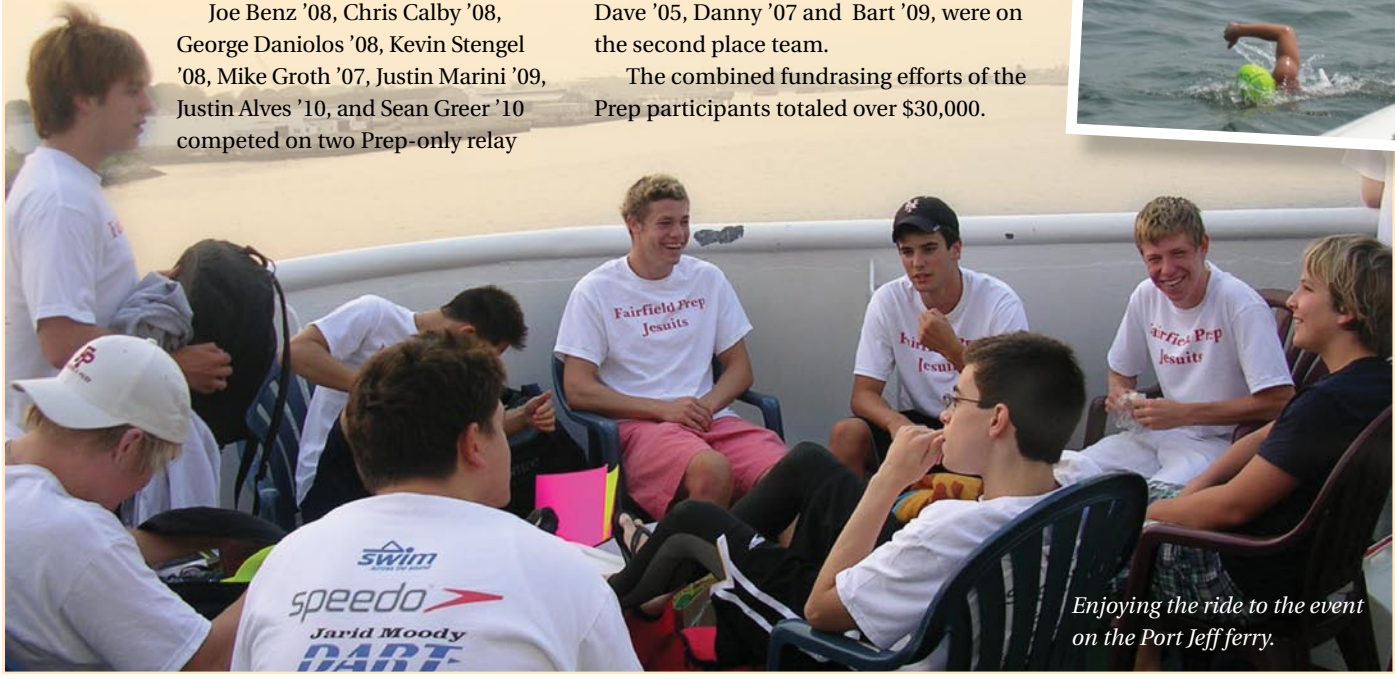

Prep Raises $30,000 for "Swim Across The Sound"

On August 4, 2007, thirteen Fairfield Prep students and alumni participated in The Swim Across The Sound. The event, comprised of solo swimmers and team relays, is a 15-mile swim from Port Jefferson, NY to Captains Cove, Bridgeport, Conn. Funds raised benefit cancer education, screening and prevention programs. This is the 20th anniversary of the event.

Joe Benz '08, Chris Calby '08, George Daniolos '08, Kevin Stengel '08, Mike Groth '07, Justin Marini '09, Justin Alves '10, and Sean Greer '10 competed on two Prep-only relay teams that finished eighth and fourteenth out of 39 teams. These teams were organized by Joe Benz '08 with Guidance Counselor, Rick Hutchinson '87, serving as Team Captain/Swimmer. Varsity Swimming Captains Matt Watson '08 and Pat White '08 competed on the record-setting winning relay team. The three Platow brothers, Dave '05, Danny '07 and Bart '09, were on the second place team.

The combined fundrasing efforts of the Prep participants totaled over $30,000.

2007 Prep Golf Outing

October 8, 2007 was a banner day for over 100 friends of Prep. Great River Golf Course was the venue for the traditional Columbus Day outing and the weather was just fine for 18 holes of golf at one of the best public course around. John Chiota '86 chaired a committee which worked diligently for months and secured more sponsorships than any other tournament in recent memory. Golf pro's Ray Mahon, Mike Martin, Dave Renzulli and Tom Rosati, all Prep alumni, provided free instruction prior to the round. We will be back at Great River next year: why don't you join us?

Can we get their class years please?

Alumni Serving Our Country

Dan Diotalevi '05 with the US Merchant Marine Academy

Dan Diotalevi '05 is a midshipman at the United States Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, Long Island. The USMMA, like the other four service academies, accepts students based on a combination of academic, moral, character, and leadership qualities. Each applicant must have a congressional nomination from their U.S. Representative or Senator. Only 275 young men and women are accepted into the freshman class.

Freshman (fourth class or plebe) year is particularly strenuous. They learn endurance, how to perform under pressure, and most importantly, how to successfully manage time. During sophomore (third class) year and junior (second class) year, midshipmen are sent to sea for practical shipboard training known as Sea Year. In senior (first class) year, they fine tune the skills learned in the classroom and at sea as they prepare to enter the professional world.

Far From Home

Sea Year gives the cadets experience working in the merchant shipping industry. Cadets are assigned to a variety of operating US flag merchant vessels, traveling the trade routes of the world. They put their classroom knowledge to the test in real-life environments, completing several school projects, all while visiting a number of foreign countries.

During Dan's first sea period, he worked on the M/V Green Cove ship sailing to several US ports (Newark, Hueneme (CA), Jacksonville, Honolulu, Baltimore, Charleston and Houston), several foreign ports (Guam, Japan, South Korea, Mexico, Panama, Puerto Rico, Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates and Kuwait), as well as sailing through the Suez and the Panama Canals. Dan is currently participating in his second sea period, and has spent much time in the Pacific Ocean (San Diego), as well as in Alaska, Australia, Guam, and Singapore. He will be working for the National Steel and Shipbuilding Company (NASSCO) in September when he heads back to San Diego to perform a 6 week internship at the NASSCO shipyard.

Dan is majoring in Marine Engineering and Shipyard Management. Dan is also a Naval Reservist, and upon graduation will serve in the Naval Reserve for eight years. Enrollment at the Academy requires many personal sacrifices, but the goal, as Dan is learning, is worthwhile. Upon graduation Dan plans on working in the maritime industry, and at some time in the future, pursuing a higher degree.

Making friends in Australia and seeing the world as a midshipman.

Army's Mike Benedosso '03 is 112 pounds of fury

There he is, says Army Boxing Club coach Ray Barone, our best fighter, as Mike Benedosso walks into the gym for practice.

Best fighter?

Benedosso looks like a 16-year-old. Like a kid.

Then the kid starts hitting the speed bag with quick combinations and he looks like a champ.

"Nicest guy in the world," Barone says. "But get him in the ring, and he will kill you."

Benedosso, Army's 112-pounder, is a three-time all-American with a 15-6 career record and Olympic aspirations. Still, some of his opponents overlook him.

Benedosso is 5-foot-3 and even he admits, he looks more like a bookworm than a brawler.

"I think some people see a short guy and think it's going to be easy," says Benedosso, a senior. "They think they can just overpower me. I let them think that, and when I get in the ring, I turn on the switch."

Benedosso never boxed until he arrived at West Point. His first class on his first day of school was boxing. It was intimidating, fighting and the whole Academy thing, but Benedosso was a schoolboy wrestler back home in Milford, Conn.

He can scrap.

Barone spotted him in boxing class. He liked Benedosso's grit and tenacity. Benedosso joined the Army boxing club as a freshman.

Benedosso works hard to improve, spending hours in the gym under the watchful eye of Barone and his staff. He spars with teammates who are as much as 30 pounds heavier, because no team has many 112-pounders. Benedosso used to be a slugger, but now he can box, working opponents inside with his quick jab.

He is relentless, working over an opponent 20 pounds heavier during a recent practice. He refuses to lose.

Benedosso just keeps coming at opponents.

"I hate losing, period," Benedosso says. "I work so hard and I refuse to accept that someone worked harder than me. I'm the one who is going to walk out of the ring with his hand raised."

Benedosso, 21, will begin training with the All-Army boxing team in January 2008 as part of the Army's world class athlete program. His five-year active duty after graduation with the U.S. Army will be spent trying to qualify for the 2008 Summer Olympics in Beijing and the 2012 Games in London.

For now, Benedosso is gearing up for Army's biggest part of the season. He can't wait to fight, look into the eyes of another opponent that he knows is overlooking him.

And knock him on his tail.

"That kind of smacks them back into reality," Benedosso says.

Remembering Major Joseph M. Loughran, Jr. USMC '51

The USN/USMC Reserve Center in New Haven, CT was dedicated in memory of Major Joseph M. Loughran, Jr. Joe received numerous medals, the most prestigious of which is his Legion of Merit Medal which was awarded by President Lyndon Johnson. He was a member of Prep's Class of 1951.

The bronze plaque in the lobby states, "This Reserve Center is dedicated in memory of Joseph M. Loughran, Jr. Born in Greenwich, CT in 1933. Major Loughran was assigned to Vietnam where he served as Executive Officer of the 3rd Battalion, 26th Marines. On May 2, 1968 Major Loughran was killed in action while participating in search and destroy operations with his battalion."

The 1951 "Hearthstone" noted: "Joe … as neat and shiny as a new silver dollar … firm supporter of inter-class sports … personality plus … one of those who made the daily trek from Greenwich … a model of frankness … selected by his fellow students as a leader … president of Senior A … hopes to attend Boston College to major in education."

We are grateful that his name and his sacrifices will be honored for years to come at the "Major Joseph M. Loughran, Jr. USMC Memorial Reserve Center."

Message from the President

We have had many top sports achievements this fall, plus an upcoming drama production and a repeat holiday concert performance at Lincoln Center featuring our Concert Band, Jazz Band and Concert Choir. Furthermore, our students are involved in important campus ministry projects, trips and retreats, as well as extracurricular clubs such as the newly resurrected Debate Society.

As the year progresses, I will be actively meeting our alumni and generous benefactors throughout the country. Several trips are planned, including Washington, D.C., Chicago, and Boston, as well as Florida and the West Coast. When I speak to alumni, they continue to highlight the major impact their Prep education and experience made on their lives, and how they have maintained their strong friendship bonds over the years.

This issue of Prep Today is dedicated to thanking those members of our Fairfield Prep community who help to make our mission, our work, our growth, and our dreams possible. I have thanked each person listed on these pages individually by word or letter, and now we thank everyone who supports our important work of training Prep boys to become Men for Others.

No matter what challenges this current academic year may provide, we embrace them with faith, confidence, and joy. May the Lord continue to bless us all abundantly.

Sincerely,

Rev. John J. Hanwell, S.J.

Teachers on the Move

Joe Farrell, Prep teacher, coach, alum and entrepreneur!

This is Joe Farrell's second year teaching math at Prep, where he graduated with honors and was recognized in football on the All SCC and All Connecticut Post teams in 1999. After graduating from Fordham University, where he met his wife Angela in his senior year, he worked for a couple of years in the private sector at Cushman & Wakefield, a global commercial real estate firm. In January, 2006, he and Angela founded 3Fe Apparel in order to market a unique design of cashmere scarf. Angela had learned how to craft the unusual cashmere knit from her aunt at a family wedding, and the couple decided to launch a company to sell their first product, "The Pidge." They designed the scarf to be short, wrapped around the neck and secured with two hand-crafted olivewood buttons. Production was established in Bridgeport and they imported the cashmere yarn from Italy. The business took off, with interest from retailers and a growing web-based business (See 3FeApparel.com). In addition to his busy life at Prep as teacher and assistant freshman football coach, Joe spends hours at nights and on weekends attending to the business. Other Prep alums are involved in the business as well, including Greg Angelo '96, Director of Media Relations for 3Fe Apparel, John T. Farrell '96, Evan Marsillio '00, and Charles Ritter '00. We wish Joe flying success with "The Pidge."

When asked to put a few words to paper about why "younger" Prep alumni should consider making a bequest or planned gift to Prep, I thought I should do some background research. After all, I am a data-driven person who carefully weighs all the available facts and figures before making most business decisions in my job as chief patent counsel for a local biotech company. I am also the kind of person who wants to have the complete historical perspective on any given matter. Did this mean I would have to include a compelling dissertation on the historical origins of the Jesuits? However, as I began to write these words, it just made sense to share my thoughts about why you should consider including Prep in your estate planning.

I owe so much in my life to my Prep education. How about you? When I think back to my four years at Prep, I did not fully appreciate what an enormous impact those years would have in shaping my life. Prep prepared me for the future in many ways – academically, spiritually, and socially. My Prep experience is an inseparable part of who I am. I certainly want Prep to be around for future generations of young men to also have the opportunity to share similar experiences.

By giving back to Prep through a bequest or planned gift, you are making the ultimate commitment to Prep - a commitment that truly transcends time and says, even after I am no longer around, I want to be sure that Prep is still there to continue its Jesuit mission for other young men. No matter your age, shouldn't you consider making a lasting gift to Prep? I did.

Fairfield Prep welcomes the Class of 2011 as they begin their 4 year journey.

Prep Stars Inducted Into Basketball Hall of Fame

Last November, two Prep legends were concurrently inducted into the New England Basketball Hall of Fame. Bob Sylvester, Head Coach of Prep's basketball program from 1962 until 1977 and Jim Fitzsimmons, a 1969 graduate who led New England in scoring his senior year with a 32.5 average, were inducted as coach and player, respectively. Fairfield Prep salutes these two outstanding sportsmen!
