- MAP reading and Math Projections
 - Last year our composite score was 33.6% this year our goal is 37.0% and we are making steady progress towards that goal
 - Projected Proficient for MAP Reading & Math Projected Composite is 27.0%
 - Numbers from MAP Reading and Math Projected Composite from last year did correlate almost exactly with EOY testing
 - There needs to be 37 more students (3rd – 5th grade math, reading and science) to make a 3, 4, or 5 on their EOG
 - Power BI has been used for tutoring groups and will be used again after spring break in individual PLC's
 - When students take their Spring MAP test, students need to do their best so that the numbers are accurate
 - Last year 34.0% of grade 3 reading students were proficient, right now we are at 11.1% predicted to be proficient and we will need 12 more 3rd grade reading students to be proficient to meet our goal
- EVASS states goals for students
 - 4th grade math – 14 students predicted to be proficient (EVASS predictability model)
 - EVASS lets us know which specific students are projected to be proficient
 - 5th grade math - EVASS predictability model 14 – MAP projection is 18
 - 4th grade reading – EVASS predictability model 11 – MAP projection is 20
 - 5th grade reading – EVASS predictability model 7 – MAP projection is 15
 - If a student is projected to get a 99% and receives a 97% then he didn't meet his growth
 - This is how our grade as a school is determined
 - Look at the percent correct of what the student was predicted to get correct
 - You can look at the Stanine questions
 - We have enough data points to help students grow and move forward
 - Our data looked similar last year
 - Tutoring - Students who are coming to tutoring now may stay in tutoring, but some students will be finished with tutoring and their session will end.
