Leadership Inservice August 3-5, 2010 :: New Teacher Inservice August 6-7 & 9, 2010
All Staff Inservice August 10-13, 2010

ENGAGING LEARNERS

Student engagement is the product of motivation and active learning. It is a product rather than a sum because it will not occur if either element is missing.

— Elizabeth F. Barkley

LEADERSHIP INSERVICE SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

Note to Principals and Lead Teachers: Inservice for site administrators and district office personnel begins at 8:00AM on Tuesday, August 3, 2010. Please make your own travel arrangements to Dillingham, and plan to be in Dillingham at District Office by Monday evening, as we have a busy few days planned and a lot of exciting topics to cover. Tuesday's time will focus on district programs and procedures. Wednesday and Thursday will be spent working on several leadership, school improvement and technology integration topics. On Wednesday, we will be working with Dr. Gary Whiteley again. On Thursday, site administrators will have a special session with Gerry Smith from Apple Computer..

Our Thursday presenter, Gerry Smith, has been an educator for over 30 years. He started education teaching math and science and then served as a school administrator for 25 years in Ontario, Canada. Gerry had the opportunity to open a new school in 1990 (River Oaks Public School) just outside of Toronto that looked at the restructuring of curriculum and the effective utilization of technology in the teaching and learning process. The school hosted over 10,000 visitors from around the world during Gerry's time as principal of the school. He has worked extensively with MOEs, DOEs and schools around the world including those in Asia, Australia, New Zealand, China, Japan and North America. He was also a senior consultant with the International Center for Leadership in Education (Dr. Willard Daggett) and has worked with Dr. Michael Fullan (co-authored a paper and Dr. Fullan was the researcher in River Oaks Public School). Gerry has lived in the United States since 2000 and currently manages Apple Professional Development for Apple. He manages a team of Apple Professional Development trainers in the United States and other countries providing professional development services to administrators and educators across the country. He has a Bachelor of Science degree, a Masters degree in Educational Administration and Curriculum and, is currently finishing his doctoral program (dissertation process) in Instructional Leadership and Technology.

RESPONSIBLE THINKING PROCESS (RTP)

RTP is a process that teaches respect for others by fostering responsible thinking. This unique classroom discipline process is both non-manipulative and non-punitive. It creates mutual respect by teaching students how to think through what they are doing in relation to the rules of wherever they are. This gives students personal accountability for their actions. The key component of this classroom discipline process is its focus on how students can achieve their goals without getting in the way of others who are trying to do the same thing. In short, it teaches students how to respect others.

For children to succeed, they must believe you care and have confidence in their ability to solve problems. Always ask questions, in a respectful, calm, curious voice. Never punish, reward, lecture, or yell, because trying to control another doesn't work. Avoid excuses, don't ask why. When disruptions occur, ask:

- What are you doing?
- What are the rules? or Is that ok?
- What happens when you break the rules?
- Is that what you want to happen?
- What do you want to happen?
- What will happen if you disrupt again?

These six basic questions help guide students through the process of becoming responsible for their own actions and are at the heart of the Responsible Thinking Process.

"RTP reduces the incidence of school discipline problems, ranging from minor disruptions to violence. When there are disruptions – and there always will be, at least occasionally – RTP provides students with an effective means for resolving their issues in a calm and respectful atmosphere. Because this process doesn't attempt to control or manipulate students, there is a reduction in their anger and frustration."

– Ed Ford, Creator of RTP

Sally Eberhart is recently retired from the Anchorage School District where she spent 19 years as an elementary teacher and 7 ½ years as part of the Instructional Technology Department. In that role she worked closely with teachers and students at eleven schools, providing training and support. In addition, she was involved in a number of district wide technology projects. Recently, Sally joined the Apple Professional Development team in Alaska working on the AASB Consortium for Digital Learning 1:1 laptop project being implemented across the state of Alaska. She has been traveling to different parts of the state working with teachers and students involved in the 1:1 program for the past year. She took part in our technology camp in New Stuyahok a year ago and returns this fall for more training.

Robin Johnson has worked in the field of education for 25 years. She grew up in rural Alaska and returned to her home community of Nome to teach at the elementary level after earning a degree in Childhood Development and Elementary Education from Western Washington University. Robin became a member of Alaska's Apple Professional Development Team in 2008 and loves working with the Consortium for Digital Learning Districts and Apple. She has a passion for digital story telling which led her to the position as chair of the iDidaMovie project while serving as an ASTE Board member. In 2001 Robin was recognized by ASTE as the Technology Teacher of the Year and she was selected as an Apple Distinguished Educator in 2005.

Then, the participants will be exposed to methods and ideas that help get students deeply engaged in their learning. They will experience and take back to their classrooms at least three highly practical and engaging strategies can be easily implemented. Each strategy modeled can be easily modified for different subject matter, grade level, and levels of rigor.

Chane Beam is a National Board Certified Social Studies Teacher with over 22 years experience in education. His classroom career included four years as the head basketball coach and seven years as the Athletic Director at his school. Chane has been part of the PEAK team for over six years in both part time and full time capacities. He is a contributing author for Teaching for Excellence by Spence Rogers and the PEAK Learning Systems' Team, the lead author of Teaching for Excellence, the Social Studies Example Book, and is a Lead trainer and Education Project Leader for PEAK Learning Systems. He has lead trainings and coached teachers in districts across the nation including in Florida, North Carolina, Texas, Idaho, Michigan, and Alaska.
