Dear Lagway Parents,

We hope you and your family had a wonderful and restful Spring Break! We are excited to welcome our students back to school tomorrow, refreshed and ready to finish the school year strong.

With just nine weeks remaining, daily attendance is more important than ever. Our K-2 teachers are working hard to complete grade-level standards and solidify foundational skills in reading, writing, math, social studies, and science. Meanwhile, our 3rd-5th grade students will continue learning new concepts while also beginning review for the upcoming state assessment.

Our students and staff have worked diligently throughout the year, and these final weeks are crucial for reinforcing learning and ensuring mastery of key skills. We encourage you to support your child's education by asking about their lessons each day. This simple step reinforces the value of learning and helps students take ownership of their academic growth.

Thank you for your partnership in your child's education. We truly believe that what they learn today will shape their future success. Let's make these last nine weeks count!

Thank you,

Mrs. Wilder
