Ritenour Celebrates First Arrivals of Electric School Buses

The Ritenour School District community celebrated the first arrival of electric school buses on Feb. 4 at the district's transportation depot at the Husky Support Center.

Prior to Feb. 4, Ritenour had received the first three electric (EV) school buses of a 24-EV bus fleet, thanks to a $9,495,000 grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) as part of its Clean School Bus Program. With the 2024 federal grant, Ritenour will replace 24 diesel buses with EV buses. This is the largest EPA Clean School Bus grant given to a school district in the St. Louis area.

A federal freeze on clean energy funding from Jan. 29 through Feb. 18 put a temporary pause on the delivery of additional electric buses during that period. The grant money was released again on Feb. 19, allowing for the delivery of the final 21 electric buses.

The new electric buses are already running routes with students. District funds have not been used for the new electric buses or for the 24 charging stations at the Ritenour bus depot.

The Feb. 4 festive celebration featured an onsite tour of Ritenour's new electric school buses and recognition of all the partners who made the electric bus fleet possible for the Ritenour School District, including the EPA, Midwest Bus Sales, IBP, Ameren Missouri, Kaemmerlen Electric and the Eastern Missouri Alliance for Clean Transportation, which helped write the grant.

Ritenour is one of only two St. Louis area school districts that were awarded an EPA Clean School Bus grant. Funds from the grant and the sale of 24 Ritenour diesel buses will cover the costs of the new electric fleet and the charging stations located at the bus depot.

Student leaders and cheerleaders from Ritenour High School led the countdown with horns and cheers as Ritenour bus drivers and guests set off canisters of biodegradable confetti to celebrate the new electric buses.

"Our new electric school buses are a game-changer for our district," Dr. Chris Kilbride said. "They're not just better for the environment, but they also provide a more comfortable, quieter ride for our students and drivers—and even for neighbors living near our bus depot. This is an exciting step forward, and we're proud to lead the way in creating a healthier future for our community."

The district is using the EV buses for local routes and keeping four diesel buses for student-sponsored trips that are outside the immediate area. The EV buses can run approximately 100 miles on a charge; Ritenour buses typically run about 30 miles per day for their routes.

Kilbride said that in addition to the health benefits of no diesel emissions and the EV buses' ability to provide a more comfortable ride with air conditioning, he is excited about the cost savings of the EV buses for the district. Once the district has its full fleet of electric buses, the savings are considerable.

"We expect to save more than $3.3 million by not buying new diesel buses to replace our current ones within the next five to eight years," said Kilbride. "We project that the new EV fleet will provide at least a 50% savings on fuel and a 40% savings on maintenance and repairs. It makes us proud to be both good stewards of our taxpayers' money and of our environment with these EV buses."

The Ritenour transportation team helped celebrate the rollout of the first electric buses in the Ritenour fleet on Feb. 4.

Making Ritenour Schools Stronger Through Strategic Decision Making

Superintendent Dr. Chris Kilbride

In Ritenour, we are committed to making thoughtful, strategic decisions that positively impact our students, staff, and community. To ensure lasting and meaningful improvements, we follow a structured Complex Change Model—a framework that helps guide successful change in our schools.

Here are the important parts of the model:

- Leadership – Strong leaders help guide and support change.
- Shared vision – Everyone understands the goal and why it matters.
- Skills – Teachers and students get the training they need.
- Resources – Schools have the tools, money, and support to succeed.
- Incentives – People feel motivated to support the change.
- Strategy – A clear plan helps keep things on track.
- Governance – Rules and guidelines make sure things are fair and smooth.

Ritenour Complex Change Model

If any of the pieces are missing, the changes might not work well. We know that every choice we make impacts not just Every Student, Every Day, but also our families, staff and the entire Ritenour community.

For example:

- No shared vision? Families, students, and teachers might feel confused.
- No skills? Teachers might not feel ready to use new programs.
- No resources? Schools might not have what they need to help students.

- No incentives? People might not be excited about the change.
- No strategy? The plan might feel unorganized.
- No governance? There might not be clear rules to follow.

To guide our work, we use clear strategies and visual tools like the Change Model chart below to help us assess progress and determine the best next steps.

As we continue districtwide initiatives such as Competency-Based Education (CBE) and Trauma-Informed Schools, we recognize that change takes time, and we are committed to continually improving.

This school year marks the first full implementation of CBE, and we know that learning and growth are ongoing. Our staff continue to build their skills to integrate this approach fully into their teaching. As with any new initiative, we must learn from experience. As a learning organization, we are committed to evolving and improving so that students receive the best possible education. As with any new work, we must recognize that we must “know better to do better” and that learning only comes through time and experience.

We are also working toward Trauma-Informed Schools, which means helping students with their emotions so they can focus on learning. Each school has refocus and co-regulation rooms where students can calm down and get back on track. We know that traditional discipline isn’t always the best way to help students. Instead, we work together to create plans that support each student’s needs.

We appreciate your partnership as we continue to strengthen student experiences and outcomes. Thank you for supporting Every Student, Every Day on this journey!

“We appreciate your partnership as we continue to strengthen student experiences and outcomes. Thank you for supporting Every Student, Every Day on this journey!”

-Dr. Chris Kilbride

Celebrating Black Excellence: A Month of Inspiration in Ritenour

Ritenour students and staff celebrated Black excellence with creative learning experiences throughout February as part of Black History Month. In addition to classroom activities, below are some highlights of events, projects, and speakers from each Ritenour building.

Buder Elementary students from every grade level rocked a packed house in the school gym on Feb. 27 as they belted out songs from The Wiz as a culminating Black History Month assembly for families.

Ivland Elementary's annual schoolwide Black History event for families engaged each grade level in different aspects of African American culture. The performance included outstanding drumming, singing, dancing and student speeches. In addition, fifth-graders showcased art projects that they had worked on throughout the month.

Kratz Elementary's third-graders opened a school assembly on Feb. 25 with a Kratz cheer they wrote based off the nation's first private Historically Black College, now called Central State University in Ohio. The students then performed music from various Black musicians from different eras of American history, including drumming to Aretha Franklin's song, "Respect."

Marion Elementary fifth-graders brought Black history to life with their Living History Museum. Each fifth-grader researched a legendary African American, created a project board with facts about that person and then dressed up and shared a short summary of their famous person.

Marvin Elementary focused on children's literature. Teachers shared stories written by Black authors or books with African American characters. At the end of the month, students did book reviews of their favorite stories.

Wyland Elementary's all-school assembly featured students singing "Lift Every Voice and Sing," drumming to Michael Jackson, and giving powerful speeches, including "I Have a Dream," as well as tributes to important Black figures throughout history. Wyland staff also led a read-aloud from the book, "The Undefeated," by Kwame Alexander and Kadir Nelson.

Hoech Middle School closed out Black History Month with an artifact fair and student performances on Feb. 28. Students showed off skillfully designed artifacts that celebrated famous St. Louis music icons Josephine Baker and Ike and Tina Turner, as well as St. Louis entrepreneur and philanthropist Annie Malone, and the historical significance of the St. Louis Urban League.

Ritenour Middle School's National Junior Honor Society created two large murals in the school's front hallway. One inspired students to add their dreams to a board that featured Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s speech, and the other pulled inspirational quotes from famous Black Americans.

Husky Academy students were inspired by three Ritenour High School alumni who overcame obstacles to become successful. Presenters included Kionna Wells, a 2000 graduate who started a successful business; 2011 graduate Miistro (Reggie Terrell), an artist, musician and music producer; and Garrett Willis, a 2013 RHS graduate who has found success working in real estate.

Ritenour High School's Game Changers ended Black History Month by hosting a successful vendor fair for local black-owned businesses on Feb. 27. More than a dozen businesses run by Ritenour students, alumni and staff participated in the fair. The evening event also included outstanding performances by the RHS Jazz Band, Vocal Flex and select string orchestra members.

District Names New Campus Ritenour Center for Educational Excellence

The Ritenour School District is proud to announce the official name of its newly acquired property at 10901 St. Henry Lane in St. Ann: the Ritenour Center for Educational Excellence. This facility will serve as a cornerstone for expanded educational programs for the Ritenour community.

The new Ritenour Center for Educational Excellence (RCEE) will be the new home to the Ritenour International Welcome Center (IWC), the Center for Gifted Education, and additional early childhood classrooms. Renovations on this campus will be completed in July and will be ready for students to start in their new spaces at the start of the 2025-2026 school year.

RCEE sits on a 3.92-acre site formerly known as Holy Trinity Parish and School. It includes 30,000 square feet of space in a main school building and an annex with five additional classrooms.

The new campus will honor two influential educators in the district's history: the Julie Hahn Center for International and Gifted Learners and the Janine Milam-Haynes Early Childhood Annex.

"We are excited to honor the legacy of Ms. Hahn and Ms. Milam-Haynes on this new campus," said Superintendent Dr. Chris Kilbride. "This site allows us to meet the growing needs of our students and families, creating more opportunities for every learner to thrive."

Ritenour's Husky

Provides Resources and

The Ritenour School District is focused on serving the whole child - academically, socially, emotionally, and with health care.

The Husky Support Center, located at 9303 Midland Blvd. in Overland, provides wrap-around support and structures focused on improving achievement for every student in every Ritenour classroom.

Wrap-around supports at the center include the Ritenour Co-Care Food Pantry, a clothing donation center, an optometry center, the Husky Health Center, tutoring and mental health support.

“These programs reflect our commitment not only to supporting the whole child but also to strengthening the entire community,” said Ritenour Superintendent Dr. Chris Kilbride. “We know that for students to thrive academically, their basic needs—such as food, healthcare, and essential resources—must be met. By providing these wrap-around supports, we are removing barriers to learning and creating an environment where every student has the opportunity to succeed.”

The building, formerly the Overland Baptist Church, was purchased by Ritenour in July 2019.

Ritenour Co-Care Food Pantry

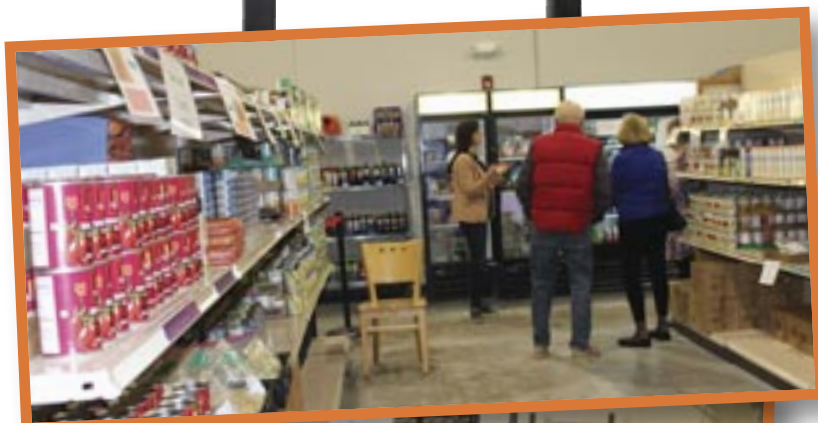

The Ritenour Co-Care Food Pantry is a non-profit organization that is run separately from the Ritenour School District. The pantry is committed to providing relief from food insecurity in a respectful and dignified manner to anyone living within the Ritenour School District.

Ritenour Co-Care started in 1980 and has grown to be the second-largest food pantry in the St. Louis area. Staffed by mostly volunteers, the pantry is now serving more families than ever before. On average, the pantry serves more than 150 families per day and provides food to more than 1,500 families per month.

Husky Support Center

and Services to the Entire Community

Husky Health Center

The Ritenour Husky Health Center originally opened in January 2019 in the north wing of Hoech Middle School but relocated this school year to the Husky Support Center, where it has additional space and a centralized location in the district. The clinic is free for all Ritenour students in grades PreK-12. Transportation is provided by the district for students between schools and the health center during school hours to minimize classroom disruption.

The Husky Health Center allows students to access health services – including pediatric medical care and behavioral health services – during school hours. Services include chronic disease management for asthma, immunizations, physicals and referrals for other medical services at the center. CareSTL Health staff who see patients are licensed professionals. Ritenour’s Husky Health Center is a partnership between Ritenour and CareSTL Health. All medical staff are provided and paid for through CareSTL Health.

The Ritenour community celebrated the expansion of the Husky Health Center with a ribbon-cutting celebration on Nov. 14, 2024. The center plans to provide services for Ritenour staff members and the entire Ritenour community in the future.

New Optometry Center for Students

The Ritenour community proudly celebrated the grand opening of a satellite office for the University of Missouri-St. Louis (UMSL) College of Optometry at the Husky Support Center on Feb. 7. This partnership brings affordable and accessible vision care to Ritenour students, ensuring that clear sight is never a barrier to learning.

UMSL optometrists provide low-cost or no-cost comprehensive eye exams and vision care for students referred by school nurses. Currently, the optometry center operates by appointment only on Thursday mornings for Ritenour students who are referred to the center by their school nurse. The center plans to expand services in the coming months to better meet the needs of students and families.

Ritenour Donation Center

In the spring of 2024, Ritenour launched a donation center for district families at the Husky Support Center. Ritenour families can receive items like coats, gloves, hats, jackets and blankets at no cost. Families can visit the donation center by appointment during school hours. To make an appointment, contact a Ritenour social worker or school office.

Transportation, Information Technology and Tutoring Services

The Husky Support Center is also home to the Ritenour School District Transportation Department, the Information Technology Department and Mathnasium - a math tutoring program.

In addition to housing these departments, the Husky Support Center serves as a centralized storage hub for district supplies and equipment, ensuring that essential resources are organized and accessible for schools and staff.
