Principal Message

Happy Mid-Winter Rock Ridge:

Welcome to swinging temperatures, ranging from -20 degrees to high 50's, making it difficult to forecast how best to dress for school. Since we do not have supervision prior to 3:20am, students will not be allowed into the building until that time. Also, we have outdoor recess when temperatures are above 20 degrees so that they can get their wiggles out so please keep that in mind when sending your children to school and how they should be dressed.

The new digital sign is up! Thank you again PTO and the RRE community for all of your generosity to bring us into the 21st century. We are still working on some technical glitches yet hope to have this corrected soon.

On a personal note, I had knee replacement December 22nd and have slowly been transitioning back to full time at Rock Ridge. Thus, if you have not seen me recently at drop off or pick-up I may be on a short day or at a district meeting. (This will also explain the limp that I currently have hosting).

Have a wonderful day and stay warm!
Warm regards,

Peter Mosby
Principal, Rock Ridge Elementary

It may be too early for most of our students to think about dating, but it is never too early to talk to them about your expectations in any relationship, to include friendships. February is Teen Dating Violence Prevention Month. Visit LovelsRespect for ideas on talking to kids about self-respect, setting boundaries, and safety.

It's a difficult decision to decide WHEN to get your child a cell phone. Here are some tips to get your pre-teen off to the right start with some healthy habits!

Recent research shows that unrestricted use of cell phones and social media can have adverse effects on the health and development of our youth. There are some great things you can start on day one!

- 1) Monitor Screen Time: Studies show that screen exposure impacts the development of the brain in the areas that are responsible for visual processing, empathy, attention, complex memory and early reading skills. Meaning that this part of the brain is not growing as fast as brains that have limited screen time.

Here is what the American Academy of Pediatrics recommends for the following ages

- 0-18 months 0-1 hours/day only video chatting
- 18-24 months 0-1 hours/day co-viewing high-quality programming
- 2-5 years 1 hour/day co-viewing high-quality programming
- 6-12 years 2 hours/day solo screen time on weeks with parental monitoring
- 12-16 years 2-3 hours/day solo screen time on weekends with parental monitoring

- 1) Sleep: Sleep is one of the most critical ways to nurture the growth of a healthy brain. Much research has been done about how the use of phones disrupts sleep rhythms due to the blue light exposure and staying on a phone rather than going to sleep.

Here is what the American Academy of Pediatrics recommends for the following ages

- 3-5 years: 10-13 hours (including naps)
- 6-12 years: 9-12 hours
- 13-18 years: 8-10 hours

It is also recommended that children do not charge their phones in their room overnight or use them for alarm clocks due to this sleep disruption.

- 2) Parent Controls: All phones have parental controls that will restrict children from downloading apps without permission, screen for mature content, and limit, then turn off certain functions after the time limit has been reached. The site Common Sense Media has a lot of great tips for families.
<https://www.commonsensemedia.org/articles/cellphones-and-devices>
- 3) Create a Cell Phone Contract: Contracts are a great way to set up rules and expectations around time on phones, what is allowed to be viewed and how to make good choices. See this link for samples of Family Tech Planners by age
<https://www.commonsensemedia.org/family-tech-planners>
- 4) Teach Digital Citizenship: This is a way of acting online in a responsible and respectful way. Teach children about the importance of being respectful and responsible when using cell phones. This includes not sharing personal information, being mindful of others' privacy, and avoiding cyber bullying. Your child needs to understand that everything they put on social media will be there forever and will have consequences if it is inappropriate or breaks the law. See more here
<https://www.commonsensemedia.org/videos/what-is-digital-citizenship>
- 5) Teach Online Safety: Teach children about the potential risks of using cell phones, such as online predators and scams. Encourage them to report any suspicious or uncomfortable interactions to a trusted adult.
- 6) Educate Yourself on your Child's Apps: Many apps have been designed so that parents cannot see certain parts of the app. Ex. Snapchat has a "For Your Eyes Only" folder where children can set their own password. This section of snapchat is commonly known for selling and buying drugs. EDUCATIONAL GAMES

This game is the way home. This game works on puzzle solving. In this game you draw people to their home. The red shirt goes to the red roofed house, the pink shirt goes to the pink roofed house, the black guy moves boxes. If someone runs into something you lose (if the black guy runs into something he gets stunned for forever).
