Sage Smith	Alex Flemming	Jamiyah Bellinger
I am nominating Sage Smith for the character trait responsibility. I knew at the beginning of the year when the character traits were sent out, that Sage would be the perfect student to represent responsibility! Since the first day of school, Sage shows up eager and ready to learn every single day. I can always count on Sage to be accountable for her own actions. Sage is always the first one to help her peers, and myself! What I find so admirable about Sage is her willingness to own up to her actions and her determination to do the right thing. She is also a wonderful role model for her peers and younger students in the school. Way to be responsible, Sage!	Alex demonstrates not only personal responsibility but also classroom responsibility. He's not one to just walk by trash laying on the classroom floor and let it sit there. He's the first one to pick it up without being asked. He also takes responsibility for his belongings, classwork and homework. He's a great helper and in turn a great leader!	(1) Jamiyah is an 8th grade student who has been given the responsibility of independently recalling and attending her weekly related service sessions. She is able to achieve this with consistency, if not perfection. She will come prepared with novels that are being read in class, vocabulary words that need to be learned, and other work with which she may need assistance. She demonstrates appropriate behavior and comprehension of social expectations within the school environment. She should be applauded for her consistent overall school attendance and reliability. (2) Jamiyah always completes her work on time, and always tries her best. (3) Jamiyah is always on top of her work, gives her all, and we never have to question if she has completed her assignments. (4) Jamiyah is one of the hardest working people I know. Jamiyah always completes her work, no matter the circumstance. She takes her responsibility as a student very seriously. I really appreciate her for that!
Brinley Laning	Carter Flynn	Mara Littlefield
Brinley is an incredible student who demonstrates responsibility in all ways. Brinley walks in every morning, puts her belongings away, and immediately takes down all the chairs in the classroom. Then she gets straight to her morning work. Brinley excels at taking responsibility for her learning as she is consistently paying attention and growing in all that we do. Brinley is a role model for her peers as they can see what responsibility looks in all situations. Brinley is a joy to have in our classroom and we love learning from her!	Carter shows responsibility every day in and out of the classroom. He comes to school prepared to work hard, with his homework completed, and all the materials he needs for the day. Outside of school, Carter participates in multiple sports and always honors his commitments. Not something that's always easy for a young person to do! Finally, and very importantly, Carter takes responsibility for his actions and choices. Never does he place blame on others, nor does he lie. Instead, he accepts responsibility be it good or bad. Responsible, accountable, kind, hard-working, and motivated...that's Carter! And we are so lucky to have him.	Mara takes on a lot of responsibility at school. Between school work and extra curricular activities, Mara is dedicated to doing a great job! She is extremely reliable and responsible.
