

Valentine's Day

can be difficult for many and seem like it's shoved in their face, but it would still be nice to know that someone cares, so instead of trying to keep up the pace, know that you are still loved, you are still valid for not winning love's race, know that you are still worth something, and you don't need a partner to have flowers in your vase.

From a friend to a friend, well wishes from