Celebrating Our Impact and Looking Ahead

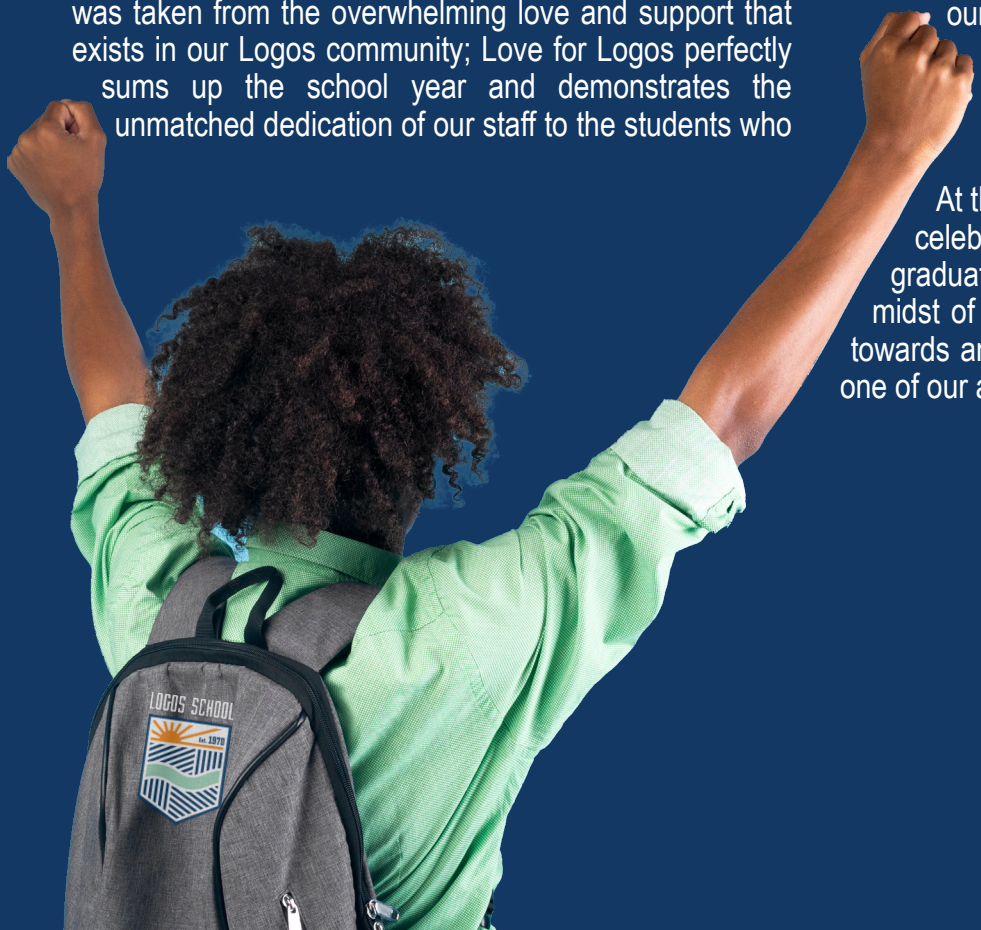

Letter from Head of School, Dr. Kathy Fenger

Dear Friends,

We are excited to share the 2024 Impact Report with you, which celebrates the hard work and achievements of our students, staff, and donors.

This impact report demonstrates a love for Logos through our donors, our numbers, and our excitement about our 2023 Legacy of Hope Gala and other projects. You will also hear personal stories from a successful alumnus and longtime board member and donor. I hope you share our excitement and reflect proudly on the strong, dedicated Logos community we've created together.

This year, the theme for our 2023 Legacy of Hope Gala was taken from the overwhelming love and support that exists in our Logos community; Love for Logos perfectly sums up the school year and demonstrates the unmatched dedication of our staff to the students who look to us for guidance and reassurance. Love for Logos also reflects the messaging from our beloved donor and chairman of our board, George Paz, for whom the Gala was in honor. George's legacy at Logos is his dedication to our school and his belief in the ability of education to open doors for successful lives. We miss him dearly and hope our work has made him proud.

Following the Gala and other exciting endeavors, our successful fiscal year culminated in rebranding to truly tell the story of how Logos transforms lives. At Logos, we believe in a world where every student's journey leads to a brighter future. During a brainstorming session for our branding, we knew this had to be our vision statement—George often expressed how strongly he believed in a world where every student has a bright future through education.

At the end of the school year, there was cause for celebration when we finished with one of our largest graduating classes ever—29 students! Now, in the midst of the 2024-2025 school year, we look forward towards an even brighter future for Logos and for each one of our amazing students.

With Gratitude,

Kathleen Fenger

Highlights
2023-2024
Logos School

This was a year of dynamic engagement—from on-site health and restorative justice to spirited athletics, creative art projects, and community service that enriched both our classrooms and lives.

Health and Wellness
Our on-site health clinic provided essential vaccinations, physicals, and wellness appointments. In addition, our wonderful nurse practitioner held multiple educational sessions with our science classes about health and the impact trauma has on the body.

Restorative Justice
We practice restorative justice, a method of addressing conflict that focuses on repairing harm to restore relationships, with our students to encourage healthy relationships once they reach adulthood.

Athletics
Athletic activities at Logos, particularly group sports, encourage team building and perseverance. Logos students can participate in three sports: soccer, volleyball, and basketball. Students gain a sense of community, work ethic, confidence, leadership, and skill development.

Group Therapy
Group therapy takes place twice per week and aims to teach skills for self-regulation and self-mastery while fostering acceptance; the social component of group is essential for practicing these skills while receiving peer validation.

Mural
Every summer, art students participate in the Logos Mural Project; this combines art and community service, as mural sites are located at area nonprofits. Once a mural site is selected, students research the organization, make a list of questions, tour the site, and interview the “client” to discover what kind of mural best fits their needs.

Prom
Prom 2024 took place at the incredible MOTO Museum, which displays a private collection of over 80 vintage motorcycles. The theme, Spies in Disguise, was especially fitting for the venue and students had a blast!

Classroom Libraries
New customized book sets were granted to one middle school classroom and three high school classrooms. The new books include more diverse options and allow students to explore themes of race, gender, and class.

Community Service
Middle school classes began working with Kiva, a non-profit that expands financial access by crowdsourcing loans, ten years ago. Students raise money for the loans through community service activities such as making bracelets and key chains for donations.

Reimagined IDENTITY

A Bold New Brand Launched in the 2024-2025 School Year

LOGOS SCHOOL

After over a year of research and consultation with marketing experts, Logos School launched new branding, including a new website, on August 12, 2024. Working with a dedicated marketing team who understood the significance of what we do at Logos, we developed new visual elements such as our crest and mascot in addition to a new mission statement, vision, and tagline.

New Colors! Our transition to new branding reflects our commitment to our students and their educational and emotional successes. Every aspect of the new branding, from the logo to signature colors, signifies part of our students' journeys. Our new primary colors are Knowledgeable Navy, Energetic Orange, and Renewing Mint; the accent colors are Calm Sky and Hopeful Yellow.

The Logos School Crest holds a deeper meaning than our previous logo because it represents our mission and embodies the work we do with our students.

A Brighter Future
The sun represents our vision—a world where every student's journey leads to a brighter future.

The Journey
The winding path represents each student's journey and our mission to foster a path to hope and success.

RODNEY & CINDY KINZINGER'S COMMITMENT TO LOGOS SCHOOL

RODNEY & CINDY Kinzinger

Dedicated

Rodney Kinzinger has been involved with Logos School, whether that be as a board member, a donor, or a committee member, since 2009 at the prompting of his friend George Paz. Rodney came to learn that Logos is special because we are committed not just to the academic success of our students, but also to their therapeutic achievements and emotional growth.

The work we do at Logos is personal to Rodney and Cindy, who have adopted children who have experienced their fair share of challenges. "In retrospect, we should have sent them to Logos—it would have been a good fit for them, but we live so far away" Rodney shared.

When asked about his time serving as a board member, one instance stands out in Rodney's mind. "A student was having a meltdown while some other board members and I were waiting in the lobby," he explained, noting that the student seemed out of control and in distress. "The other committee members looked on in horror, but I thought to myself, 'this happens in my home every day,'" Rodney said.

While staff calmly worked with the student, Rodney thought about his own children and the struggles that often happen at home without a support system like Logos.

Rodney shared that while many of the kids at Logos learn to manage their emotions healthily and go on to live happy adult lives, he knows it wasn't easy for them or their support system and is grateful to Logos for their dedication to the kids. "It takes a special individual to understand the kids at Logos," Rodney says. "Oftentimes, they feel judged by family and friends. Society needs to remember that if you haven't walked in those shoes, you don't know."

Looking through the lens of their own children's challenges, Rodney and Cindy know that there are many kids who can find hope and success through Logos. "We are 100% behind the Logos mission," say Rodney and Cindy, who have chosen Logos as one of their top three charities. They not only support Logos as generous donors, but Rodney also serves on the Board of Directors and Finance Committee.

BUILDING A Brighter FUTURE

Alum Luke Seddon's Story of Growth at Logos

Logos School is the most unique place on Earth, remarks Luke Seddon, a proud 2017 Logos graduate. "Every day was different," he elaborates, explaining that the experience of watching each student work to overcome their unique set of mental and emotional challenges was remarkable.

Luke's Logos journey began back in early 2015 when his traditional high school environment wasn't working out for him. Luke had trouble fitting in with his peers and making friends; he didn't feel a sense of community and he felt increasingly isolated from those around him. In April, Luke's parents enrolled him at Logos in an effort to find an environment that would give him the academic and therapeutic support he needed.

At Logos, the sense of community Luke sought was present in full force. Teachers and therapists dedicate themselves to the academic and therapeutic growth of their students while also prioritizing powerful, meaningful personal relationships that encourage self-confidence. "Whether they know it or not, the teachers and therapists are changing lives every day," Luke says. Students also work to build each other up; there is an understanding among students that they likely have many shared experiences and are each grappling with mental and emotional difficulties. Luke says the students also taught him an important lesson, saying "One of the skills I learned at Logos was to have compassion for other people who are going through hard things."

When Luke experienced difficult moments emotionally and mentally, he had a group of support people to rely on. Luke emphasized, "What meant so much to me was having people that were dependable and helped me through the hardest days of my life." Speaking candidly, he said "When people say, 'Logos saves lives,' they really mean it."

The skills Luke learned have stayed with him in the time since graduating from Logos in 2017. "Something I take away from my time at Logos is resilience," he says. Now living in Dallas, Texas, Luke attends Southern Methodist University, where he is pursuing a Master of Science degree in Business Management. "The classes are extremely difficult, but I know I can't give up," Luke says. The interpersonal skills and self-confidence he gained are also apparent; he shares, "I've made a ton of friends in my program, and I've been able to personally connect with my professors in a way that my friends think is really cool."

Years after graduation, Luke still expresses his admiration for Logos. In particular, he is appreciative of Head of School Dr. Kathy Fenger. Take it from Luke:

"Logos is amazing. Kathy is amazing."

REMEMBERING GEORGE PAZ'S Love FOR LOGOS

Legacy of Hope Gala October 7, 2023

Logos School's 36th annual Legacy of Hope Gala commemorated our community's dedication to improving the lives of adolescents with mental and emotional challenges. The year's theme, "Love for Logos," celebrated the power of love, hope, and the transformative legacy of Logos.

Debra Elkin was the proud recipient of the 2023 Legacy of Hope Award, which honors individuals who have made a positive difference for the students and their families at Logos School through extraordinary commitment and leadership. Elkin taught middle school at Logos for over 20 years, encouraging students through meaningful lessons, community service projects, and field trips.

The 2023 Legacy of Hope Gala was particularly special in that it honored the life and passions of George Paz, a longtime board member and chair who passed away in 2022. The Love for Logos theme perfectly captured Paz's immense devotion to our school as one of our greatest benefactors and supporters.

> "Without George's commitment to the Logos students and families for over two decades, Logos simply would not be where we are today."
> -Head of School Kathy Fenger

Paz is greatly missed, but his legacy lives on in the many lives he and his wife Melissa have saved in their love for Logos School.
