Charleston, SC – On Friday evening, April 25, 2025, the Embassy Suites Convention Center was filled with pride and celebration as students from North Charleston High School and R.B. Stall High School were honored at the inaugural Walk Among the Stars recognition event. The evening celebrated students who consistently demonstrate outstanding academic achievement and exemplary behavior, many of whom are often the quiet, behind-the-scenes stars of their schools.

Hosted in collaboration between the two schools and the City of North Charleston, A Walk Among the Stars was created to spotlight those students who are not always in the limelight but whose discipline, consistency, and character shine through their actions every day. These students are respectful, diligent, and quietly lead by example, earning the admiration of their teachers and peers alike.

Distinguished guests in attendance included North Charleston Mayor Reggie Burgess, CCSD Executive Director of High Schools Ryan Cumback, R.B. Stall High School Principal Steve Larson, and North Charleston High School Assistant Principal Nathaniel Spitulski. Each took the stage to offer words of praise and encouragement to the students and their families, applauding their perseverance and commitment to excellence.

“This event was a powerful reminder that greatness often speaks in quiet tones,” said Cumback. “These students represent the very best of what our schools have to offer.”

The evening featured heartfelt moments and opportunities for families and staff to celebrate students who are too often overlooked.

“You may not always be seen, but tonight, we see you—and we are proud,” shared Mayor Burgess.

A Walk Among the Stars marked a meaningful step in fostering a culture that values consistency, integrity, and academic success in all forms.
