

Back by popular demand!

We are excited to announce that we will offer LETRS to teachers for the 2025-2026 school year!

“Language Essentials for Teachers of Reading and Spelling” by Louisa Moats and Carol Tolman has been “an eye-opening” year of learning for the 42 teachers enrolled this year.

LETRS might be for you if you:

- Teach reading
- Teach spelling
- Want to learn up-to-date, science of reading strategies for teaching your students to read and spell
- Want tools to help your students who struggle learning to read and spell—no matter the grade you teach
- Need college credits and want your coursework to directly impact your classroom instruction

GFPS will:

- Pay for the course, book, and 4 in-person days with a LETRS-Certified instructor
- You can use the in-person hours for PIR If they occur within the PIR year.
- Certify your work to American College of Education, if you are seeking graduate credit (up to 12 credits for 2 LETRS Volumes 1 and 2.) You are responsible for paying for this low-cost graduate credit.
- Offer encouragement and support with your learning

If you are interested in learning more, join us for an optional informational meeting on Monday, May 19 at the DOB at 3:45.

Or call Rachel, me, or any of your colleagues currently in LETRS or any instructional coach. We have 40 seats available.
