To: Incoming Coronado Freshman Honors English Students
From: Freshmen Honors English Teacher-Coronado High School
Subject: Summer Reading Assignment
CC: Mrs. Arnell, Principal, Coronado High School

Welcome to Coronado High School and the C.H.S. English Honors program. I am looking forward to rich and rewarding challenges as you transition from middle school to high school. You will soon discover Coronado's campus is filled with opportunities for achievement in widely varied areas. By enrolling in the Honors English program, you have committed to pursuing a rigorous study of English language, literature, vocabulary, and composition. The English department has designed a summer program of readiness that includes 1. reading and annotating a novel and 2. a review of significant grammar concepts from middle school. Here are the specifics:

1. Choose one of the following books to read and annotate:
 - a. The Secret Life of Bees by Sue Monk Kidd.
 - b. Code Talker by Joseph Bruchac.
 - c. Unbroken by Laura Hillenbrand (the young adult version ISBN 978-0-385-74252-8)

I recommend you purchase your own text because annotating the text will help you become a better reader. Also, keep in mind that used bookstores and Amazon.com often have relatively inexpensive copies.

You will need to annotate the book following the guidelines on page 3 of this letter as you read. This will help you prepare for discussions and analytical essays during the school year and give you the necessary practice in close reading.

NOTE: During the first week of class, you will have a test and/or write an essay over the reading to check your comprehension. Slow down and make sure you are reading carefully!

2. The second part of preparing for Freshman Honors English is to review the rules for punctuation, capitalization, and parts of speech. You are expected to be proficient in each area. Be able to correctly identify all eight parts of speech from a sentence. Have the FANBOYS and “be verbs” memorized. You may be quizzed/tested on these areas each semester. If you do not score proficient in each area, you will be required to complete extra work to include, but are not limited to, additional homework exercises, before/after school tutoring, or tutoring at lunch.

FANBOYS = for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so
“be verbs” = am, is, are, was, were, be, being, been

Note to Parents and Guardians: We appreciate your support in ensuring that we provide each student with the best educational experience possible. Signing up for an honors class indicates that your son or daughter will be willing to work at a rigorous pace to improve writing and communication skills. If you have questions about the appropriate placement for your son or daughter, please get in touch with a counselor or teacher as soon as possible. As the year progresses, I will give advance notice to your student of any texts that will be covered so that you may purchase copies ahead of time. Thank you in advance for helping your student’s successful transition from middle school to high school.

Annotating a Text

Annotation is a critical component of close reading. Since we will annotate texts all year, you need to develop a system that works for you (within the following guidelines). The techniques are almost limitless.

Required Annotations- (Create a list - inside cover, random blank pages)

- A. Characters: every time a character is introduced, write down their name, a description, and the page number. In addition, every time this character undergoes a significant change, add the different page numbers and notes.
- B. Settings: every time a setting is introduced, write down a description of the time and place and the page number.
- C. Vocabulary: annotate any vocabulary words you don't know by looking up the definition and writing it in the book.

Additional Annotations –

What should you annotate?

Again, the possibilities are limitless. Your annotations must include comments. I want to see evidence of thinking.

- Have a conversation with the text. Talk back to it. How do you have a conversation with the text?
 - Ask questions (essential to active reading).
 - Comment on the actions or development of a character. Does the character change? Why? How? The result?
 - Comment on something that intrigues, impresses, amuses, shocks, puzzles, disturbs, repulses, aggravates, etc.
 - Comment on lines/quotations you think are especially significant, powerful, or meaningful.
 - Express agreement or disagreement.
 - Summarize critical events. Make predictions.
 - Connect ideas to each other or to other texts, movies, songs, and/or personal experiences.
 - Note if you experience an epiphany.
 - Note anything you would like to discuss or do not understand.
 - Note how the author uses language. Note the significance if you can.

Literary elements to look for-

- tone/mood
- repetition of words, phrases, actions, events - patterns
- irony
- contrasts
- symbols
- imagery
- themes
- motifs
- allusions
- point of view
- any other figure of speech or literary device

For the remaining annotations- Use any combination of the following:

- Make brief comments between or within lines of the text. Do not be afraid to mark within the text itself. In fact, you must.

- Circle or put boxes, triangles, or clouds around words or phrases.
- Use abbreviations or symbols - brackets, stars, exclamation points, question marks, numbers, etc.
- Connect words, phrases, ideas, circles, boxes, etc., with lines or arrows.
- Underline/Highlight – CAUTION: Use this method sparingly. Underline only a few words.

Always combine with another method such as comment. Never underline/highlight an entire passage. Doing so takes too much time and loses effectiveness. If you wish to mark a whole paragraph or passage, draw a line down the margin or use brackets.

- Create your own code.

*If you have checked out a book from the school library, please annotate on paper in a notebook. You may not copy character or setting lists from Spark Notes or enotes. Annotations are personalized per the individual; they should not be the thoughts of a computer website.

Book Mark- How to Annotate

Before Reading:

- ☐ Examine the front and back covers (books)
- ☐ Read the title & any subtitles
- ☐ Examine the illustrations
- ☐ Examine the print (bold, italic, etc.)
- ☐ Examine the way the text is set up (book, short story, diary, dialogue, article, etc.)

As you examine and read these, write questions and make predictions and/or connections near these parts of the text.

During Reading:

Create a list in the text:

- ☐ Characters (who)
- ☐ When (setting)
- ☐ Where (setting)
- ☐ Vocabulary (squiggly underline)

Mark in the text:

- ☐ Important ideas or information (highlight/underline)

Write in the margins:

- ☐ Summarize
- ☐ Make predictions
- ☐ Formulate opinions
- ☐ Make connections
- ☐ Ask questions
- ☐ Analyze the author's craft
- ☐ Write reflections/reactions/comments
- ☐ Look for patterns/repetitions

After Reading:

- ☐ Reread annotations—draw conclusions
- ☐ Reread introduction and conclusion—try to figure out something new
- ☐ Examine patterns/repetitions---determine possible meanings
- ☐ Determine what the title might mean

Annotation Instructions

Print this page and cut out the attached bookmark. Use it to help you read for important information.

Obviously, annotation is as personal as reading, and there are MANY ways to annotate a book. This system is just a suggestion. For example, some people prefer to use colors to differentiate elements, and some prefer to use "Post Its."

If you already have a system, feel free to use what you are comfortable with.
