

PLC Facilitator Training in the Critical Friendship Model

What It Is: This train-the-trainer model provides hands-on strategies for teachers and school leaders to collaboratively examine student work and maintain a keen focus on transforming their practice and improving student learning in a professional learning community setting.

This year's training will be unique in that the content of the learning will be focused on personalized deeper learning, student-centered classrooms and building learner agency. Participants will practice using the protocols and honing their facilitation skills around dilemmas and student/teacher work that they face in their daily practice.

Proposed outcomes:

- 1) Understand the significance of professional learning communities in improving student learning and how coaches can support them through responsive facilitation
- 2) Practice giving and receiving safe, productive and authentic feedback on student work, curriculum, and educator dilemmas
- 3) Assemble a resource kit of protocols designed to make effective use of on-going collaboration time – whether it is with a grade level team, department colleagues, or others formats
- 4) Learn multiple strategies for engaging in reflective discourse using texts and data
- 5) Grow understanding of deeper, personalized learning, student-centered classrooms and learner agency

Logistics: Located at 37 E. Pennington Street, Tucson, AZ;

- | | |
|---|--|
| ☐ Tuesday, June 10 | 10:00-3:30 (Building a Learning Community) |
| ☐ Wednesday, June 11 | 9:00-3:30 (Exploring Protocols) |
| ☐ Thursday, June 12 | 9:00-3:30 (Practicing Facilitation) |

Cost $500/person ($400/person for teams of 2 or more); Free for AZPLN and CCCL teachers

To register or for further information contact: JoAnn Groh, joann@cityccl.org