Program Overview

The Academy of International Studies is a four-year program at Carrboro High School that helps students develop and maintain a global worldview. The umbrella of AIS involves: course options, guest speakers, Model United Nations affiliations, cultural field trips, and global travel. Students who participate then graduate with AIS Certification and chords for completing the program.

By Year

Freshman / Sophomore Year - All students are automatically in the program.

Junior / Senior Year - Before graduation, students take two AIS courses and participate in AIS adventures.

At School

Students have the opportunity to learn from all sorts of guest speakers - whether it's an American humanitarian, a French computer scientist, a UNC German professor, or a Peruvian peace fellow, our students have numerous opportunities to learn from experienced professionals. In addition, AIS puts on movie nights, throws Oktoberfest parties, and hosts panels.

Around the Globe

Travel with us to Ecuador, Peru, New York, or Washington D.C.. With AIS, you'll have plenty of chances to get out of the country and experience extraordinary cultures or visit new places here in the U.S.. If you're interested in staying local, AIS has excursions downtown to the Morehead Planetarium or the Akland art museum.
