Lessons from the U.S. Marine Corps: A Summer Reflection
Two weeks ago, I had the powerful opportunity to join educators from across the country at a U.S. Marine Corps workshop in San Diego. From listening to recruits' inspiring stories to rappelling down towers and experiencing military training firsthand, it was an unforgettable experience that deepened my respect for the discipline, resilience, and opportunities the military offers. As summer begins, I'm reminded that growth can come in unexpected forms—whether through service, education, or challenge.
