NOV. 22ND, 2024

WHAT'S NEW?

FRES

We have had a very busy week here at FRES!

Monday, the 4th and 5th grade Writing Club started and had an amazing number of 21 participants sign-up! Thank you Mrs. Radloff and Ms. Reid for taking on this important leadership role afterschool.

Tuesday, 5th graders visited the 1st grade and read them a book called, "Mean Jean The Recess Queen". Great job 5th graders! What a great way to be role models and for setting a great example.

On Wednesday, the 3rd grade visited Mt. Kearsarge Native American Museum in Warner, NH. At the Museum, students learned about the Native Americans customs and local tribes.

Friday, the Turkey disguise winner in 1st grade will be determined. Winners will be announced next week. Be on the look out for some really great pictures!

Reminder that the Turkey Trot will take place on Monday, November 25, 2024.

Have a great weekend!

1st Grade visit to the police station

Greetings from the library! Things have been bustling here this year, with students having checked out just shy of 3000 books to date this year. We've been able to get some engaging new books out on the shelves, and students are really enjoying them - especially our new cookbooks! I've seen lots of pictures of kids making some pretty delicious looking treats, from pretzels to Hedwig Meringue's. Did you know that baking is a great way to practice math and science skills, as well as a great way to spend quality time together? Keep up the great work!

Kindergarteners have been so enthusiastic about books and creatively connecting them with their real life. This year we have a new library collection just for the kindergarten, featuring books donated from previous students and community members, which is helping to teach them about how to take care of books and be responsible in bringing them back the next week so they can get another. They are doing a great job being responsible!

First through third graders have just begun voting on this year's assortment of Ladybug Picture Book nominees. Students seemed to enjoy all the books, and we look forward to adding our votes to the tens of thousands from New Hampshire students across the state to determine this year's winner!

Fourth graders will have wrapped up their Unusual Animal Slideshow presentations and we will start looking at how to identify and find materials in the organization of the library. The fifth graders are reviewing library organization as well, and creating engaging and informative posters to help our younger students find their favorite non-fiction books around the library.

LCS NEWS

This week at LCS, each class was able to visit the JA Tarbell library, and pick out a book! The students did a fantastic job walking to the library and staying safe. Over the past 2 weeks, Nurse Marissa has visited each classroom, and taught a health lesson on proper hand washing. On Friday, we celebrated with a whole school PJ and ice cream party! Next week, each class will have a Fruitsgiving celebration! We hope you have a great weekend!!!
