County Services

Children, Youth & Families

814-432-9100

Provides crisis services and investigates all child abuse and neglect allegations within Venango County. The agency also delivers ongoing case management services to all families open for services, and offers independent living services to qualified youth. CYFS actively recruits and maintains licensed resource families for children when placement is necessary. Children and youth case management services conduct home visits, assess the safety of children, and refer children/family to appropriate services within the community while striving to achieve safety and permanency for all children.

Drug and Alcohol Prevention – Venango County Drug and Alcohol Program provides school and community-based Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drugs (ATOD) prevention and education services. These programs are designed to reduce individual and environmental risk factors and to increase protective factors.

814-432-9100

Early Intervention Services – Early Intervention provides support and services to infants and toddlers from birth to age three who have special needs due to developmental delays or disabilities. Early Intervention services occur in the home or other natural environments. There is no cost to the family for the evaluation and services if the child qualifies.

In order to qualify for Early Intervention, an intake and evaluation are completed with the child and family to determine strengths, needs, and eligibility. If a child has a medical diagnosis that puts him/her at risk for developmental delays or if a delay of at least 25% (-1.5 standard deviation) is exhibited in one or more of five developmental areas.

Along with case management, Early Intervention can provide other services as needed; such as physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, special instruction, vision, hearing and nutrition. 814-432-9100

Foster Care Program – Provides licensed homes that provide temporary shelter and care for children in a family-like setting. 814-432-9100
