RI.IT.11-12.3. Analyze the impact of an author's choices as they develop ideas throughout the text regarding a complex set of ideas or sequence of events and explain how specific individuals, ideas, or events interact and develop. RI.MF.11-12.6. Synthesize complex information across multiple sources and formats to develop ideas, resolve conflicting information, or develop an interpretation that goes beyond explicit text information (e.g. express a personal point of view, new interpretation of the concept). RL.MF.11-12.6. Synthesize complex information across multiple sources and formats to develop ideas, resolve conflicting information, or develop an interpretation that goes beyond explicit text information (e.g. express a personal point of view, new interpretation of the author's message). W.AW.11-12.1. Write arguments to support claims in an analysis of substantive topics or texts, using valid reasoning and relevant and sufficient evidence. A. Introduce precise, knowledgeable claim(s), establish the significance of the claim(s), distinguish the claim(s) from alternate or opposing claims, and create an organization that logically sequences claim(s), counterclaims, reasons, and evidence. B. Develop claim(s) and counterclaims avoiding common logical fallacies and using sound reasoning and thoroughly, supplying the most relevant evidence for each while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both in a manner that anticipates the audience's knowledge level, concerns, values, and possible biases. C. Use transitions (e.g. words, phrases, clauses) to link the major sections of the text, create cohesion, and clarify the relationships between claim(s) and reasons, between reasons and evidence, and between claim(s) and counterclaims. D. Establish and maintain a style and tone appropriate to the audience and purpose (e.g. formal and objective for academic writing) while attending to the norms and conventions of the discipline in which they are writing. E. Provide a concluding paragraph or section that supports the argument presented (e.g., articulating implications or the significance of the topic). W.SE.11-12.6. Gather relevant information from multiple authoritative print and digital sources, using advanced searches effectively; assess the strengths and limitations of each source in terms of the task, purpose, and audience; integrate information into the text selectively to maintain the flow of ideas, avoiding plagiarism and overreliance

W.RW.11-12.7. Write routinely over extended time frames (time for research, reflection, and revision) and shorter time frames (a single sitting or a day or two) for a range of tasks, purposes.

Learning Objectives and Activities

SWBAT answer the following questions:

- How do filmmakers effectively convey their message to their audience?
- How does a director use surrealistic cinematic techniques to represent human truths on the screen?
- What editing techniques does the director choose when attempting to deliver the message of the story in the strongest way possible?

SWBAT demonstrate understanding of the following:

- Filmmakers use the camera in various ways to reflect elements of literature - setting, plot, character development.
- Filmmakers use a variety of cinematic devices and techniques to create a desired effect.
- Filmmakers can play with the camera and light to enable the viewer to understand the characters, setting, tone and theme.
- Sound and music are also used to create an effect on the viewer.

Learning Activities:

- Students will be introduced to several key film techniques which will be used throughout the course.
- Students will identify specific cinematic techniques, including camera angles, music, lighting, or mise-en-scene while watching movies that strike them as unique.
- Students will learn about pioneers in the movie industry, whose unique techniques set the standard in the industry (Alfred Hitchcock, Stanley Kubrick, Wes Anderson).
- Students will read about the latest trends in cinematography, which coincides with the latest technology (i.e., more closeups than landscapes to coincide with iphone movie viewing)..
- Students will learn about historical methods of film-making, based on technology that was available at the time, which continues to influence filmmakers today.
- Students will discuss cinematic techniques after watching movies, and what effect they had on their viewing experience.

Assessments

Formative:

- Class observation and discussion
- Group work and small group discussions
- Checking study guides for correct film analysis
- Regularly incorporate film terminology in essays and classroom comments.

Summative:

- Short writing response on cinematic techniques observed
- Historical background assessment on certain films.

Alternative:

- Visual graphic organizers to accompany assessments when necessary.

Interdisciplinary Connections

Students will explore cinematography, and the visual aspects of how filmmakers use visuals to create meaning:

1.2.12prof.Cr1c: Critique plans, prototypes and production processes considering purposeful and expressive intent.

1.2.12prof.Cr1d: Apply aesthetic criteria in developing, refining and proposing media arts artwork.

1.2.12prof.Re9a: Evaluate media art works and production processes at decisive stages, using identified criteria and considering context and artistic goals.

Career Readiness, Life Literacies, and Key Skills

9.3.12.AR-AV.1 Describe the history, terminology, occupations and value of audio, video and film technology.

9.3.12.AR-VIS.2 Analyze how the application of visual arts elements and principles of design communicate and express ideas

Technology Integration

Students will engage in ongoing class commentary/discussion of film techniques using online platforms:

9.4.12.TL.4: Collaborate in online learning communities or social networks or virtual worlds to analyze and propose a resolution to a real-world problem.

SWBAT demonstrate understanding of the following:

- Genre study is used in the study of film in order to facilitate the categorization of films.
- Conducting studies of multiple genres can help students to achieve a better understanding of their characteristics.
- Genres are dependent on various factors such as story line, whom the director is, what the audience expectations are, and what we expect to find within a particular collection of films.
- An important part of genre study is knowing what period a film was made and knowing to whom the intended audience is.
- It is common to see the same directors and actors in one genre.
- Genres usually contain similar content and a certain style of filmmaking.
- Although many films have similarities that place them in one genre category, there are many others which could be placed in more than one.

Learning Activities:

- Students will be introduced to multiple genres over the course of the semester.
- The concept of genre is introduced through class discussion, during which students determine the main characteristics of various genres.
- Students will learn to identify certain formulas that make up specific genres (Western, film noir, coming of age, etc.).
- Students will learn the difference between plot and story.
- Students will learn the seven universal plots that underpin all stories.

Assessments

Formative:

- Class observation and discussion
- Group work and small group discussions
- Checking movie notes for correct genre analysis
- Regularly incorporate film terminology in essays and classroom content

Summative:

- Short writing response on genre study observed
- Common characteristics assessment on typical genres

Alternative:

- Matching quiz to evaluate students on their understanding of genre and subgenre terms.
- Create movie poster of feature film from a different genre.

RI.CR.11-12.1. Accurately cite a range of thorough textual evidence and make relevant connections to strongly support a comprehensive analysis of multiple aspects of what an informational text says explicitly and inferentially, as well as interpretations of the text.

RI.MF.11-12.6. Synthesize complex information across multiple sources and formats to develop ideas, resolve conflicting information, or develop an interpretation that goes beyond explicit text information (e.g. express a personal point of view, new interpretation of the concept).

SL.PE.11-12.1. Initiate and participate effectively in a range of collaborative discussions (one-on-one, in groups, and teacher-led) with peers on grades 11–12 topics, texts, and issues, building on others' ideas and expressing their own clearly and persuasively.

A. Come to discussions prepared, having read and researched material under study; explicitly draw on that preparation by referring to evidence from texts and other research on the topic or issue to stimulate a thoughtful, well reasoned exchange of ideas.

B. Collaborate with peers to promote civil, democratic discussions and decision-making, set clear goals and assessments (e.g. student developed rubrics), and establish individual roles as needed.

C. Propel conversations by posing and responding to questions that probe reasoning and evidence; ensure a hearing for a full range of positions on a topic or issue; clarify, verify, or challenge ideas and conclusions; and promote divergent and creative perspectives.

D. Respond thoughtfully to diverse perspectives; synthesize comments, claims, and evidence made on all sides of an issue; resolve contradictions when possible; and determine what additional information or research is required to deepen the investigation or complete the task.

Learning Objectives and Activities

SWBAT answer the following questions:

- Can fictional films be used as historical evidence?
- Do people recognize film as an objective form of evidence?
- Do films reflect reality?
- What is the relationship between movies and culture?

SWBAT demonstrate understanding of the following:

- Movies are an integral part of our culture, a product of it, and therefore a reflection of prevailing concerns, attitudes and beliefs.
- Movies have the power to express a culture's ideals and shape them.
- Movies can provide an image of the way daily life unfolded throughout history.

- Movies provide gestures, gaits, rhythms, attitudes, and human interactions in a variety of situations.
- When we focus on social and cultural history, movies not only provides evidence and records, but takes on a key role.
- Movies make historical events vivid, portraying social attitudes and even revealing the unconscious assumptions of past societies.

Learning Activities:

- Research: Happenings, time periods and characters in history depicted in the movies - compare them to the movie's depiction.
- Critiques: Compare personal reactions to a professional critic's reactions to the movie.
- Write how themes and motifs are developed in a movie through settings, characters, etc.
- Read articles on movies/specific events in history that are depicted in film
- Debate an issue portrayed in a movie.

Assessments

Formative:

- Students will read articles about various historical events depicted in movies and respond using examples from movies and text.
- Group work and class discussion
- Class observation and discussion

Summative:

- Research and present a significant 20th century event, with respect to its depiction in film.
- Learn iconic movie quotes and their references to past events.

SWBAT answer the following questions:

- What are some unique aspects of a director's work that makes him or her stand out among other movie professionals in the field?
- How is the background of a movie director important to influencing his or her movie making style and techniques?
- What contributions has a particular movie director made to cinema that continues to remain influential among current film makers?

SWBAT demonstrate understanding of the following:

- Directors are the chief creators of a given film, in the same way that a book's author is its writer, and oversee all of the important aspects of their film's creation.
- Biographical information and filmographical details about filmmakers are important aspects when analyzing particular elements of personal style in their films.
- Directors have strong authorial voices who make most, if not all, of the important artistic decisions in a film's creation.
- The decisions that directors make in a film express ideas and emotions worth analyzing in greater depth.

Learning Activities:

- Students will work with a partner and select a well-known director from a given list and focus on at least two of his or her films, presenting it into a digital movie presentation.
- Choose one or two overall themes from both films and compare them to show how the director's unique style or attitude comes through.
- Students will gather research from a minimum of three reliable sources to develop a script, then gather enough pictures which coincide with the narrative to create a 12-15 presentation on Moviemaker.
- Students will include information on their chosen director, including biography, unique style, contributions to the movie industry, awards, nominations, director's inspirations, and any other pertinent information that would be of interest to their audience.
- Students will also include two 2-3 minute clips of movies which the director is known for.
- Students will use computer programs such as Audacity, PowerPoint, MovieMaker.
- Students will include a bibliography to credit sources used.
- Once all projects are completed, they will be shared with the class, who will
