

Death of an Evil Untold - Ethan

The mists of the forests cloud out the world
Concealing the secrets of death yet unfurled
They silently creep and prowl the earth
Suppressing the feelings of joy and of mirth

Dead branches jump out from the fog that surrounds
Death and decay all overabound
Fallen trees lie in the dirt, forgotten
All that is left from a forest long trodden

The mists then retreat from the woods of the land
Defeated and vanquished from the sun and its hand
It lights up the world and reveals the long-hidden
Driving out evil to never come back unbidden

"Betrayal with Love"

A reflection of how who I choose to love affects my "sinning" and betrayal.

Dulcinea H

*Hell is awaiting you.
You don't get to see those pearly gates
You got the gift of life
This is how you repay Him?
He gave you a second chance at life
This is what you do with it?
All because you want love?
That's not good enough
Not good enough for betraying me
I don't support you in this
Just because you want to kiss a girl
That's not the right way for you
I don't deserve you hurting me like that Giving me a wound I can't heal from
"What about me?" I would say back
If I could be assertive enough
"I deserve to be happy too"
Not in the way to please anyone
But to please me and me only
I'll walk alone if it means I can be happy.*