

Otsego Middle School Athletic Handbook 2025-26

To The Parent: On behalf of the athletic staff at Otsego Middle School, we would like to thank you and your son or daughter for becoming part of the athletic program. Your family interest in this phase of our school program is gratifying. Participation in athletics provides a wealth of opportunities and experiences which will assist students in everyday life.

A student who elects to participate in athletics is voluntarily making a choice of self-discipline and self-denial. There are reasons we place such an emphasis on good training habits. Good training habits are essential for the middle school athlete in preparation for interscholastic competition. Attaining this goal would be a cooperative effort by all involved.

Parents are directed to follow the proper chain of command in the event of a question or disagreement with a coach's general philosophy, amount of playing time your son/daughter receives, or other areas of concern. Parents should first have their athlete contact the coach. After this initial contact, parents should contact the coach, followed by the athletic director, and then the middle school principal. Parents should maintain a supportive relationship between the coach and the athlete. Parents are welcome to observe practice sessions, realizing that the field/court serves as an educational classroom in nature. Parents are strongly encouraged to attend the pre-season meeting where coaches explain rules, philosophy and answer any questions you may have.

When your son/daughter elects to try out for a sports team, we feel there is a commitment to certain responsibilities and obligations. This is our opportunity to acquaint you with specific policies necessary for a well organized program of athletics. Please read this information with your son or daughter.

To the Athlete: Being a member of an Otsego athletic team is the fulfillment of an early ambition for many students.

It takes a lot of work to become a dedicated athlete. To compete as an athlete for your school is a privilege and not a right. That may mean that you will have to say no to temptations an athlete cannot afford. It will be necessary that you not only understand the traditions of your school, but also be willing to assume the responsibilities that go with them.

You will inherit a leadership role when you join an athletic squad. The student body and citizens of the community will know you, and you are on stage with the spotlight on you. The student body, the community, and other communities judge our school by your conduct and attitude both on and off the field/court. As a result of this leadership role, you can do a great deal to promote school spirit and community pride.

As a squad member, you assume a serious responsibility to your home, school, and community. When you know that you have lived up to all of the training rules, that you practiced to the best of your ability every day, and that you have played the game "All Out," then your family, school, and community can be justly proud of you.

Don't do anything to let yourself or your family down. Make Otsego proud of you and your community proud of your school by setting a good example and contributing your best to the success of athletics at Otsego Middle School.

A Parent's Guide to Concussion in Sports (National Federation of State High School Association)

What is a concussion?

- A concussion is a brain injury which results in a temporary disruption of normal brain function.
- A concussion occurs when the brain is violently rocked back and forth or twisted inside the skull as a result of a blow to the head or body.
- An athlete does not have to lose consciousness (knocked out) to suffer a concussion.

Concussion Facts

- It is estimated that over 140,000 high school athletes across the United States suffer a concussion each year. (Data from NFHS Injury Surveillance System)
- Concussions occur most frequently in football, but girl's lacrosse, girls' soccer, boy's lacrosse, wrestling and girls' basketball follow closely behind. All athletes are at risk.
- A concussion is a traumatic injury to the brain.
- Concussion symptoms may last from a few days to several months.
- Concussions can cause symptoms which interfere with school, work, and social life.
- An athlete should not return to sports while still having symptoms from a concussion as they are at risk for prolonging symptoms and further injury.
- A concussion may cause multiple symptoms. Many symptoms appear immediately after the injury, while others may develop over the next several days or weeks. The symptoms may be subtle and are often difficult to fully recognize.

What are the signs and symptoms of a concussion?

Symptoms reported by the athlete

- Headache
- Nausea
- Balance problems or dizziness
- Double or fuzzy vision
- Sensitivity to light or noise
- Feeling sluggish
- Feeling foggy or groggy
- Concentration or memory problems
- Confusion
- Can't recall events after hit

Signs observed by parents, friends, teachers or coaches

- Appears dazed or stunned

- Is confused about what to do
- Forgets plays
- Is unsure of game, score, or opponent
- Moves clumsily
- Answers Questions slowly
- Loses consciousness
- Shows behavior or personality changes
- Can't recall events prior to hit

What should I do if I think my child has had a concussion?

If an athlete is suspected of having a concussion, he or she must be immediately removed from play, be it a game or practice. Continuing to participate in physical activity after a concussion can lead to worsening concussion symptoms, increased risk for further injury, and even death. Parents and coaches are not expected to be able to diagnose a concussion, as that is the job of a medical professional. However, you must be aware of the signs and symptoms of a concussion and if you are suspicious, then your child must stop playing.

When in doubt, sit them out!

All athletes who sustain a concussion need to be evaluated by a healthcare professional who is familiar with sports concussions. You should call your child's physician and explain what has happened and follow your physician's instructions. If your child is vomiting, has a severe headache, is having difficulty staying awake or answering simple questions he or she should be taken to the emergency department immediately.

When can an athlete return to play following a concussion?

After suffering a concussion, no athlete should return to play or practice on that same day. Previously, athletes were allowed to return to play if their symptoms resolved within 15 minutes of the injury. Studies have shown us that the young brain does not recover quickly enough for an athlete to return to activity in such a short time.

Concerns over athletes returning to play too quickly have led state lawmakers in both Oregon and Washington to pass laws stating that no player shall return to play following a concussion on that same day and the athlete must be cleared by an appropriate health-care professional before he or she is allowed to return to play in games or practices. The laws also mandate that coaches receive education on recognizing the signs and symptoms of concussion.

Once an athlete no longer has symptoms of a concussion and is cleared to return to play by a healthcare professional knowledgeable in the care of sports concussions he or she should proceed with activity in a stepwise fashion to allow the brain to re-adjust to exertion. On average the athlete will complete a new step each day. The return to play schedule should proceed as below following medical clearance.

Step 1. Light exercise, including walking or riding an exercise bike. No weight-lifting.

Step 2. Running in the gym or on the field. No helmet or other equipment.

Step 3. Non-contact training drills in full equipment. Weight-training can begin.

Step 4. Full contact practice or training.

Step 5. Game play.

If symptoms occur at any step, the athlete should cease activity and be re-evaluated by their health care provider.
