

NC BEGINNING TEACHER NEWSLETTER

bit.ly/NCDPIREF

March 2025 | Volume 10

“Let’s remember this: At the end of each day, despite the stuff that challenges us, we’re still the ones lucky enough to work with young people.”
--Jen Schwanke in Education Week Teacher

Our students bring their pots of life experiences and backgrounds each day that they walk into our schools. Some of what they bring is positive and some is not-so-positive. During the time they are with us, we are so lucky to have the opportunity to fill their pots with golden interactions by making their days a little brighter, letting them know that we care, and giving them the best instruction.

Sincerely,
The Regional Education Facilitator Team

Helpful Hints

In all of the tasks involved in being a teacher, it is easy to forget to continue your professional growth. You may be taking courses to complete licensure requirements or prepare for a licensure test. You may be completing a book study or series of PD sessions required by your school/district. It is important to continue to increase your knowledge and grow professionally throughout your career! When you participate in PD, be sure to follow your school/district's procedures for requests to attend and issuance of CEUs once you are on a continuing license.

Upcoming PD Opportunities

Success from the Start--Cullowhee (July 14-17).

Success from the Start--Ocracoke (July 28-August 1)

Have you met...

...the school administrators? By this time of the year, you should know the administrators of the school where you work. You may work in a large school where you report to a designated assistant principal, or you may work in a smaller school where you report directly to the principal. You should know your administrators because they will complete your observations/evaluations, offer feedback to help you grow as a teacher, and be a support when critical issues arise.

Lucky Teacher Stories

Pixabay

Curriculum Info.

Standard Course of Study (All subjects/grade levels)

DPI Classroom Resources

