Comments:

So it didn't pass last year, so now we are going to do it again to make sure it passes. Oh! And we're going to pay you now so we can ensure it passes. Since when do we pay stipends for piloting curriculum? And let's not pretend that the Board/DO/TOSAs aren't going to go through the motions, take teacher feedback, accept public comments and then do what they were going to do all along. It's insulting. Not to mention that somehow the TOSAs and leadership believe teachers on the ground are unprepared for these "#shifts" in the curriculum. We teach everyday, thank you. Further insults. The divide between 398 B St, and yes this includes TOSAs, and the classroom teacher, has been and continues to be a major issue in SSFUSD.

Comments:

Where in the curriculum is there support for practice and rigor? How is the district going to alleviate the stress for teachers having to find their own resources to supplement the gaps? How will they bridge the old to the new curriculum? How are they going to differentiate for teachers of varied experiences and skills? When explaining about supports, be specific, and in terms of teaching, not only materials.

Comments:

Since tosas do not teach in the classroom, where is the deep understanding and expertise coming from regarding the practices, content, and curriculum? How are they keeping up to date with their learning in order to be credible resources?

Where on the district website can parents learn about the pilot and be reassured that their child is learning?

Where on the website can parents clearly learn about math placement?
