I am piloting the math curriculum in sixth grade at Parkway Heights Middle School . I want to share that the students and I think the curriculum is amazing. Every day they get to do interesting learning tasks and problems that enhance the use and knowledge of math beyond the classroom. It's not easy for everyone, including me. The tasks require students to think and evolve their own strategies to solving the problems. It is different than some of them are used to learning math. But it is very rewarding and I think helping to develop students lifelong strategies toward problem-solving.

Page 40 The memo is unclear. What is the purpose of this math conference? Do classroom teachers get to participate or only math tosas? How will this experience impact students?

I want to address a concerning issue regarding the lack of response to teacher emails from the directors at the District Office. As leaders of different teams, the directors' engagement is crucial. Teachers cannot direct these questions to anyone else, as the directors are the decision-makers of these teams.

It is unprofessional and dismissive for the directors to not respond, especially given the high salaries they receive. I have heard from several teachers that their emails remain ignored, and I do not understand why their assistants cannot at least confirm receipt of the emails.

Teachers are held to high standards of communication and timeliness; we expect the same from our leadership. Please prioritize responding to our inquiries, as we rely on the directors' guidance to serve our students and community effectively.
