Social Science for a Better World

"I feel like a fire is lit... what a GIFT and an honor to be part of!" - Social Science for a Better World Participant

Social Science for a Better World is year-long professional learning series developed by MESD in partnership with the MCREN to support K-12 educators in implementing Oregon's new social science standards. Centered on recent Oregon legislation, the series responds to advocacy from students, youth, and Tribal leaders calling for more inclusive and accurate histories in classrooms.

Over three in-person sessions, participants explored Oregon's Black, Latine, and Japanese American histories; Tribally-specific and place-based histories with Tribal educators and leaders from the Klamath Tribes, Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde, and Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians; and Human Rights, Holocaust, and Genocide education. More than 100 educators and 20 district leaders have participated, accessing local expertise, classroom-ready resources, and a growing community of committed practitioners.

2024-25 Network Spotlight:

Ninth Grade On Track Network with Center for High School Success (CHSS)

CHSS ROADMAP FOR 9TH GRADE SUCCESS

Over the course of the year, MESD component districts participated in a collaborative professional learning series aimed at establishing strong foundations for 9th Grade Success (9GS) implementation. Hosted by MESD in partnership with the Center for High School Success (CHSS), each session equipped participants with essential knowledge, practical tools, and actionable strategies to support students' transition into high school. School teams engaged in data-informed decision making, strengthened their collaboration practices, and designed equity-driven, student-centered interventions. Throughout the series, educators deepened their commitment to leveraging student strengths and fostering conditions in which every 9th grader can thrive.

"I am looking forward to continuing to improve our team next year with Terry's support. We want to look at data more frequently as a team, improve Universal instruction strategies across the 9th grade classes, especially around executive functioning strategies." - 9th Grade On Track Network participant

2024-25 Network Spotlight:

Attendance Alliance Network: Reducing Chronic Absenteeism in the Region

The Attendance Alliance Network brought together district and school teams for three professional learning sessions aimed at reducing chronic absenteeism. This community of practice provided educators with opportunities to explore research, share ideas, and strengthen systems of support.

Working alongside peers from across the region, teams used data to identify and address barriers to attendance while learning effective ways to engage students and families as partners in the process. Open to a wide range of school and district staff, the network fostered collaboration across roles and built momentum for systemic changes to improve attendance throughout the region.

Workshops and Limited Run Series

One-time workshops and limited run series provide opportunities for educators to engage with education leaders, learn about equity-centered and research-based strategies, and practice new skills.

The 2024–25 school year offered educators opportunities to engage in workshops and series such as:

CTE Educator Externship: The 3rd annual CTE Externship, hosted in collaboration with the Associated General Contractors Union and other partners, was a 4-day learning experience showcasing the construction industry. Participants were provided with a working knowledge of construction career pathways and had the opportunity to forge authentic relationships with industry partners.

Empowering Educators in the Age of A.I.: Multnomah ESD and the Portland Reading Council co-hosted this three-part virtual professional learning series designed to support Oregon educators in exploring artificial intelligence in education. Through dynamic presentations and hands-on activities, participants deepened their understanding of AI concepts, built AI literacy, and examined practical classroom applications to enhance teaching and learning.

K-12 Teachers: Building Thinking Classrooms In-Person Workshop: This full-day workshop invited Oregon K–12 teachers to experience Building Thinking Classrooms (BTC) practices firsthand through interactive math activities, classroom visits, and collaborative planning. Hosted by math specialists from Clackamas and Multnomah ESDs, the training highlighted research-based strategies that boost student engagement, deepen learning, and bring excitement to math instruction.

MESD Collaborative Integrated Guidance Four-Part Series: MESD districts and charter schools took part in an interactive workshop series designed to support improvement planning in alignment with ODE's Integrated Guidance. These sessions provided facilitation, tools, and resources to help district and charter school teams collaborate on strategies to address inequities and improve outcomes for students.

Paraeducator Workshops Embedded in District Professional Learning Days: MESD's Paraprofessional Learning team partnered with districts to facilitate workshops for classified staff during district professional learning days. These sessions are designed to build skills, ensure instructional alignment, and support the effective integration of our valued paraprofessionals and classified staff into school communities through meaningful professional development.

10,643 Hours of Engaged Learning through Workshops and Series

Annual Paraeducator Summer Conference

The 2024 Paraeducator Summer Conference offered an engaging professional learning experience for paraprofessionals across our region. The conference spanned two weeks with four virtual days and one in-person day. Session topics ranged from trauma-informed education and restorative practices to multilingual literacy instruction, Transformative Social Emotional Learning, and innovative tools like AI in education. Feedback highlighted how much participants valued the engaging presenters, meaningful peer collaboration, and practical resources they could immediately apply in their classrooms.

AI Empowered Edu Conference

In partnership with Northwest Regional Education Service District, Clackamas Education Service District, and the University of Portland, MESD hosted the second annual AI Empowered EDU Conference in May 2025. The conference brought together educators and administrators to explore how artificial intelligence can support more inclusive, equitable, and future-ready learning environments. Participants engaged with a diverse mix of speakers from across the education landscape through dynamic sessions and panels exploring ethical integration, classroom applications, and district-level planning.

"Every session I attended had direct application to my work. I'm leaving with strategies I can use tomorrow." - 2025 AI Empowered EDU Conference Participant

2024-25 Book Studies

During the 2024-25 school year, professional book studies brought educators together from across the region to explore new ideas and improve practices.

"I just want to say thank you for the best professional book club I have been a part of. As a first year instructional coach the tools, reflections, and conversations truly inspired and supported me in my professional learning and development of my coaching skills." - 2024-25 SY Book Study Participant

Paraeducator and Preschool for All Coaching

MESD staff provide coaching through our Preschool for All and Paraeducator Professional Learning programs.

Preschool for All coaches partner closely with Preschool for All sites across Multnomah County, providing relationship-based, individualized coaching to support preschool educators. Coaches collaborate with teachers to set goals, implement evidence-based strategies, and strengthen inclusive practices. Through mentoring, tailored support, and a transformational coaching model we help elevate program quality and build early learning environments aligned with our shared vision for equity and cultural responsiveness.

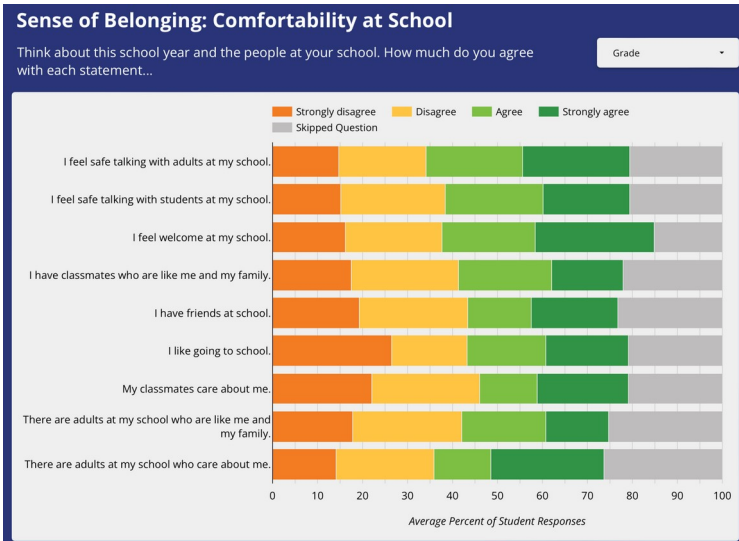

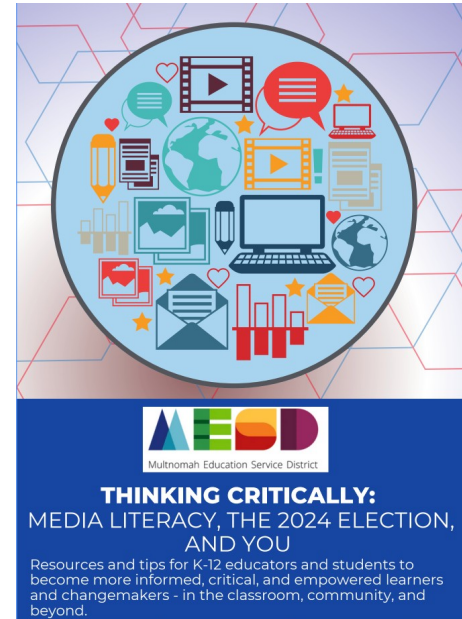

Paraeducator early literacy coaching supports David Douglas School District Instructional Assistants (IAs) who are also participating in monthly Science of Reading communities of practice. Coaching sessions and cycles are tailored to individuals and include: instructional practice demonstrations, side-by-side teaching, and observations with specific feedback. There is a strong emphasis on highlighting the expertise each IA already possesses and the positive impact this has on the many students they interact with every day. In the 2025/26 school year, this coaching will be expanding in partnership with Gresham-Barlow School District as well.

*"I was afraid to be observed at first. Then when it happened I was like, do it more."
- Paraeducator Coaching Participant*

New Resource Highlights

During the 2024-25 school year, our teams developed a suite of resources designed to help educators navigate complex challenges, use data for decision-making, and foster meaningful learning and improvement across our region.

Thinking Critically: Media Literacy, the 2024 Election, and You was created to support K-12 educators and students in becoming informed, critical, and empowered changemakers. In response to the rise of misinformation and rapidly evolving technologies like AI, the toolkit offered timely strategies and classroom-ready resources to help navigate today's complex information landscape. It served as a springboard for meaningful teaching and learning that extends beyond the classroom and into the broader community. An updated version of the toolkit will be released September 2025.

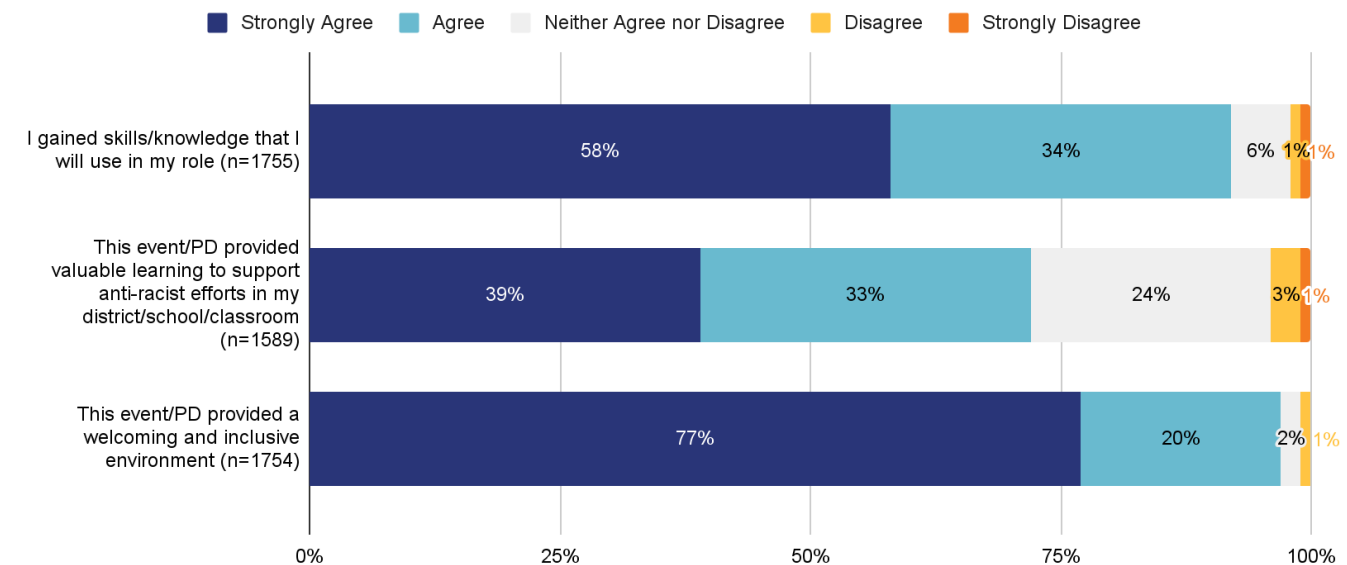

The SEED Survey Dashboard helps bring the Oregon Department of Education's Student Educational Equity Development Survey data to life, making it easier for district and school teams to explore and understand student experiences. With clear visuals and a user-friendly design, these district-specific dashboards help educators turn data into meaningful insights that support continuous improvement.

Climate & Culture Professional Learning Consultation Protocol: This year, the Climate & Culture Team implemented a consultation protocol designed to co-develop and co-facilitate professional learning in partnership with school leaders. The protocol includes pre-screening questions, individualized planning, material review, and optional co-facilitation to ensure alignment with both site-specific priorities and broader district goals.

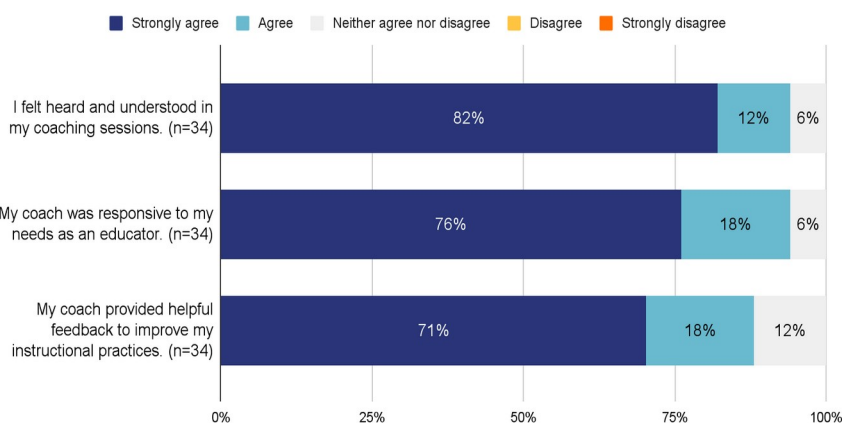

Feedback from Participants

More than 1,500 participants completed end-of-session surveys for 87 individual professional learning opportunities

Paraeducator and Preschool for All Coaching

MESD staff provide coaching through our Preschool for All and Paraeducator Professional Learning programs. Below is a summary of feedback from 2024-25 school year participants.

“[My coach] was so kind and helpful. As a relatively new IA, I felt overwhelmed with how much I had to learn. [My coach] was always patient with me and gave me good pointers to improve my instruction.”
- Paraeducator Coaching Participant

“Having a coach has been a great addition to my practice. Seeing our coach interact with the kids, outside of coaching us, has also been helpful to experience and educational.”
- Preschool for All Coaching Participant

Professional Learning Focus Groups

In spring 2025, MESD hosted focus groups with 27 educators from across our eight component districts to gather insights on their experiences with MESD’s professional learning offerings. Participants shared how MESD’s networks, communities of practice, and book studies are helping deepen their practice, foster collaboration, and advance equity in schools. Key takeaways highlighted the value of practical, timely content, skilled facilitation, and opportunities for peer connection, while also pointing to ways MESD can further strengthen professional learning in the region.
