COURSE DESCRIPTION

In this course, students will read a myriad of texts that span multiple genres. In addition, students will read a number of shorter texts that include short stories, poems, essays, articles, personal narratives, songs, epic poems, nonfiction treatises, and philosophical allegories. With each reading experience, students will engage with a mix of support and increasing independence in a deep analysis, for example, of complex characters and how they develop throughout a story, interact with other characters, move the plot forward, and develop the theme. Additionally, students in 9H will conduct analysis across texts and genres, synthesizing their ideas where appropriate. All students in grade 9 will read The Tragedy of Romeo and Juliet from the challenging list by William Shakespeare.

Students will engage in a number of research and writing experiences throughout the year. These experiences include: frequent informal writing assignments, on-demand writing pieces, processed literary analysis essays, multimodal pieces or presentations, narrative essays, written responses, transdisciplinary or extra-curricular works of choice, and written portfolio reflections. All language standards will be addressed through students' authentic writing as they create pieces that could also be considered for inclusion in the portfolio. Because grammar and usage development in children rarely follows a linear path, students will experience both structured mini-lessons on identified grammatical concepts and an opportunity to apply these concepts consistently and repeatedly in their own authentic writing.

Students will hone their listening and speaking skills as they engage in a variety of formal and informal discussions, including Socratic Seminar, fishbowls, trio talk, and partnerships. They will also create and deliver formal presentations using digital media as support. Students will set both writing and reading goals, collect and review their own data, and use this information to advance as readers and writers. One of their goals will be focused on shaping communication for specific audiences. Students will also begin to synthesize information and establish sound practices for evaluating credibility of sources. Collaboration with peers will continue to be an expectation.

Honors-Level courses are similar to College Preparatory courses by design, yet require students to explore topics and concepts more deeply and analyze texts and information that are beyond grade level expectations. Students in honors classes are expected to read and analyze complex texts and information independently, without significant scaffolding, and at a much quicker pace. Students should also be capable of independently expressing their thoughts and understandings through a variety of written formats with sophistication and in order to meet the needs of both task and audience. The expectations for skill demonstration, content mastery, and work habits are above grade level.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Students should:

- become increasingly responsible for their own learning.

- create their own self-directed questions about texts.
 - participate in a developmental sequence of writing assignments in narrative, analytical and inventive voices in order to interpret texts and their own experiences.

 - collaborate in order to extend, challenge and broaden their thinking.
 - become active readers by making connections, making inferences, noting confusions and surprises, and revising initial ideas about a text.
 - explore figurative language, metaphorical thinking, and philosophical meaning.
 - understand the difference between literal and figurative language.
 - consider multiple perspectives while reading.
 - demonstrate inductive, deductive, and narrative thinking in their expository writing.
 - develop a strong personal voice in their writing.

WRITING CONFERENCES

Writing conferences are meetings between an English teacher and student outside of class to discuss the student's work. They are an integral part of the Fairfield Public Schools' high school English program. Each student is required to participate in at least one writing conference per semester and at least three throughout the year.

When should students schedule conferences?

Writing conferences can occur during any stage of the writing process: generating ideas, gathering evidence, drafting, editing, revising, and reflecting. A student might use a writing conference to deepen understanding and hone skills, including conceptual understanding, logical thinking, organization, development of ideas, integration of support and detail, grammar, and/or mechanics. For some assignments, teachers might require students to schedule conferences. For the first conference of the semester, I am happy to work with you on your ideas or drafts of College Application essays.

How do students schedule conferences?

Sign up for Writing Conferences using the "Writing Conference" App on Classlink.

Can students schedule conferences to discuss reading assignments?

Yes. Developing and deepening an understanding of course content are inextricably connected to writing assignments.

Are students limited to three writing conferences each school year?

No. Students may schedule more than three writing conferences as long as teachers have room in their schedules and the opportunity to meet with all of their students.

Are writing conferences a part of English elective courses?

Yes. Students in English electives are expected to participate in writing conferences.
