Dear Roslyn Families,

What an incredible start we had today to kick off the new school year! The hallways of our school buildings were filled with excitement, curiosity, and joy as our students began a new year of learning.

Our administrators, teachers, and staff have created warm, engaging learning spaces that reflect our motto—Excellence. Elevated.—and I am grateful for their dedication to student success. I am equally proud of our students. Their enthusiasm for learning and their willingness to take on new challenges show incredible determination. And to our parents and guardians—thank you for your continued trust and partnership. Your support is what allows our school community to shine. During the first few weeks of school, I ask for your patience as the transportation department navigates new bus routes. Our bus drivers are eager to meet their new riders and will need extra time greeting and getting to know them. Be assured that any delays you experience will be temporary.

From time to time, you may see Nassau County Police patrolling our schools as part of their routine safety efforts. These visits, along with our dedicated security team and enhanced safety protocols, help ensure our schools remain safe and secure throughout the year.

As we look ahead, I'm excited for all that this school year holds—moments of growth, achievement, and lasting memories for every student. Together, we will continue to reach new heights of Excellence. Elevated.

Sincerely,

Allison Brown
Superintendent of Schools
