

Olentangy Schools and The National Center for College Students with Disabilities Present:

College, University, Careers...Oh My! Preparing for Postsecondary Options with a Disability

Tuesday
Sept 16

6:30 – 7:30 PM

Click Here to Join Meeting

Are you a student with a disability—or a family member, caregiver, or educator—wondering what comes next after high school?

This presentation covers:

- Postsecondary education and training options
- How to request accommodations in college or vocational programs
- Key differences between high school and postsecondary disability supports
- Resources to help students succeed in new settings
- Steps students can take to prepare for the transition

For more information, please contact your school's Transition Coordinator

Jenifer Montag, Ed.D., NIC, CRC

Associate Director, National Center for College Students with Disabilities

With extensive experience leading disability services at universities and community colleges, she brings deep expertise in accessibility in higher education. She advocates for non-traditional students—including those in ABE, CTE, workforce training, and apprenticeships—ensuring they understand their rights and how to access accommodations. She also equips institutions and support staff with the tools to better serve disabled students across all postsecondary settings.