

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

MODEL UN

Is a civic-education simulation that puts students in the seats of diplomats engaging in International relations. Offered as both a class and a club, Model UN equips students with critical skills in research, argumentation, public speaking, debate, and so much more! As an integrated study with fresh topics every year, delegates walk away from the conference with new ideas that transcend disciplinary silos, new lenses for viewing complex issues, conflict resolution skills, and an understanding of the varied needs of people from all around the world. The culminating experience is the 3-day Maine Model UN conference at the University of Southern Maine. There, students grapple with critical global issues like sustainability, global economic relations, international security, and human rights - all the while collaborating with other students from around the state to create solutions to these problems.
