

4. Can I advance in the world language department?

While we strongly recommend taking world language courses at your home high school, we understand there are circumstances where students want to advance in this subject area. If you are choosing to advance in language, we recommend advancing to the lower levels (level 1 or 2).

5. Does LVJUSD have financial aid or scholarships available for NDC courses?

A: No, though some NDC schools may have their own system for financial assistance. It is the responsibility of the student to secure their own financing for their NDC courses. Note that community college courses are free to high school students, and any course taken through LVJUSD for remediation is part of their free public education.

6. Can I self-study and test out of a year of math?

No, at this time, LVJUSD requires students to complete the course through an accredited school to advance to a higher level. There is no test-out option.

7. Will I earn high school credit for taking a math class online over the summer?

No, if you are taking the course for advancement. Advancement courses are excluded from your GPA and will not be credited toward graduation requirements. Only courses taken for remediation would be awarded credit.

8. Can the credit I earn from NDC classes count toward any graduation requirement?

For remediation - yes, for D or F grades.

For advancement, no, the courses will be noted but excluded from GPA and graduation credits.

For augmentation - yes (World Language not offered at GHS.)

Enrichment - no

9. Can I start NDC during the 8th grade?

Yes, however, courses must be completed after the last day of the 8th-grade year to count as 9th-grade courses for advancement.

10. Can I take the Summer Geometry course at Las Positas College?

Las Positas will not give credit for this course because it is not a college-level course. LVJUSD has not adopted this course, and therefore, it is not UC/CSU approved. At this time, we are not allowing advancement or approving this course.

11. Is BYU WASC-accredited?

BYU is accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities due to its location in Utah. It is also listed on UC/CSU Doorways and meets A-G eligibility requirements. BYU is on our sample list of approved outside institutions.
