

WELCOME TO THE GU BLOG

BECAUSE APPARENTLY
SCREENSHOTS OF GROUP CHATS
DON'T COUNT AS MEMORIES...

Hey there, fellow GU-ers, mysterious lurkers, and teachers who would never admit they're here for the tea.

Welcome to The Mining Report - your backstage pass to the most unfiltered, mildly chaotic, and definitely sentimental highlights of our school year. If you're looking for deep wisdom and mature reflection... Well, keep scrolling. We might get there by June. MAYBE. But until then, here's what you can expect:

Sneak peeks at the yearbook content
(spoiler: yes, your face made it in this time... probably).

Behind the Jerseys: Who they are off the field and court.

Photo leaks from school events that will 100% come back to haunt us in 10 years.

Unnecessary polls like "Best Hallway to Cry In Before a Test."

Beyond the Meeting Room: Get to know our club members

Mathew Mondays: the lone voice of reason in our otherwise clown-car of a blog.

Behind-the-scenes drama from the yearbook class
(no spoilers, but glue sticks were thrown).

Teacher shout-outs and legendary quotes we'll never let them forget. Ever.

Basically, if it happened at GU, and it was mildly entertaining or oddly heartwarming, it's going in here. So buckle up, charge your Chromebooks (for once), and get ready to relive every unforgettable moment we swore we'd never speak of again.

And remember: What happens at GU... ends up in the yearbook and on the blog. 😊

Stay tuned. Stay weird. And watch the halls for Frank...word on the street is that he still lurks the halls.

 With questionable journalistic integrity,
The 25-26 GU Yearbook Class
(Fueled by caffeine, chaos, and Chatgpt)