Brown-Forman Cultural Arts Center Renovation Project

Our Vision

We aspire to modernize the Brown-Forman Cultural Arts Center with a full upgrade of its outdated lighting and sound systems, bringing the space up to current standards in theater technology and enhancing the experience for students and audiences. The updated space will better support concerts, theater productions, school-wide events, and meetings, positioning our program to remain competitive with local schools.

Impact

There has not been a significant investment in the auditorium's lighting and sound technology in over 25 years. Much of the current system is not only outdated but is beginning to fail, raising safety concerns and creating costly rental needs. This upgrade will replace critical infrastructure before it reaches total failure and reduce long-term maintenance and rental costs. More importantly, these improvements will give students access to industry-standard equipment, better preparing them for college and careers in the arts and media. By staying current with advancements, we ensure that our productions and technology remain on par with those of local schools and enhance the creative possibilities for our students.

The Opportunity

This is an exciting time to support the theater program at St. X. With new leadership and a new name, The Lumen Theater Company, there's a strong sense of momentum and renewed purpose. This renovation project is an important step in growing and modernizing the program while expanding opportunities for our students.

The total cost of the project is $500,000.
