"Today is September 16th, México's Independence Day. You might see the colors of red, white, and green in our hallways today. These are the colors of the Mexican flag. Since México is our closest latino neighbor to the south it is not surprising that 37.2 million latinos and latinas in the US have Mexican heritage. Two of those people who share Mexican heritage are Cesar Chavez and Dolores Huerta Instrumental in the Civil Rights movement, Cesar Chavez and Dolores Huerta were leaders in the fight against the unfair treatment of farm workers in the United States. In 1962, they founded the National Farm Workers Association, which later merged with other unions to become the United Farm Workers of America."
