Kelli will take minutes and share with Ryan. Ryan will share it with all on the committee.

Ryan took a minute to discuss North Cache vision. John Anderson gave the advice to watch and learn for the first year. Ryan explained the 4-6 year focus plan. Our goal as a school is to work on the big five skills classroom management. We have a district team, and a school team. Our faculty meetings are about professional development. We are going back to the basics with core values. BARC= Behavior, Academic achievement, Respect, and Connection. We are awarding tickets and rewards for these positive behaviors. Ryan is very good at verbally communicating positive reinforcement over the intercom and in the hallways.

Jake Hall- counselors are providing SEL lessons (social emotional learning). They have also adjusted the bells to keep down crowds in the lunch room and hallways. Troy has been doing roping with kids outside before and after school, during BARC and lunch. The school climate is up and very positive this year.

Kelli- teachers are focusing on the big 5, and watching data to ensure all students are learning. No one should be failing. Teachers have time each year to watch each other and learn from other teachers.

Troy explained the roping dummies and kids bring ropes. Kids are teaching those that know how to do this are teaching those that don't. This is building decision making, mental fortitude, and teamwork. This is providing newby's the opportunity to be involved and learn a new skill that isn't just sports.

Ryan discussed the push to build confidence with positive interactions. This reduces negative behavior.

Bonnie asked what the big 5 are. They are:

1. Maximize structure
2. Clarify expectations
3. Reinforce appropriate behavior
4. Respond to interruptions
5. Increase student engagement

Bonnie asked a question about the school trustlands trust. What is it? Ryan explained that land owned by the state of Utah generates money. The interest of this is divided among schools. The state requires us to spend it on the most urgent needs of the core classes: ELA, Science, Math. We use it for technology. We use it for more teachers. We use it for aides. This plan has to be submitted each year. Last year the majority was for personnel and aides. It is also used for the AMP program which helps struggling students stay on track academically and behaviorally. Ryan mentioned he loves having parent aids in the school. Our committee will be identifying goals and voting about how that funding will be used this year. After that vote, it moves to the school board, and then off to the state.

Bonnie asked about the PTA. Ryan told everyone that they can do fun extras like birthdays etc.

Nikkala moved to close the meeting. Bonnie seconded.
