Options for Education and Training After High School

Did you know that many jobs that earn good money need more education and training than just high school? You can dive into on-the-job training (internships), join the military, or become an apprentice and earn money while you learn. Technical and certificate programs, community college, or university can also pave the way to success

See job openings by education level

Want to know which jobs are hot? Check out the US Bureau of Labor Statistics website: https://www.bls.gov/careeroutlook/2020/article/education-level-and-openings.htm! They'll give you perspective on job openings based on your education level.[1]

Tip

Apprenticeships, known as "the original 4-year college" are a great option to get post-high school training in high-demand career areas. More education typically boosts wages and reduces unemployment.[2]

Types of Colleges

College is more than just big universities. It includes community colleges, trade schools, and even military academies. There's a perfect fit for everyone out there, so explore your options to find out what's right for you!

Where Should I Go For College?

Private Vocational /Trade / Specialty Schools
Want quick training for careers like chef, massage therapist, heavy equipment operator, auto body technician, paralegal, and more? You can graduate in less than a year with a professional certification for a high-demand job in the skilled trades!

Community and Technical Colleges (CTC)
Washington state has 34 public CTCs. Get a professional certificate or associate degrees for specific trades, such as nursing, automotive repair, cyber security, etc. CTCs offer associate degrees that help students transfer to 4-year colleges or universities for further education. Check www.sbctc.edu.

Public and Private 4-year College/ University
These are schools where you can earn a bachelor's degree in about 4 years. Some are high-end private schools with higher tuition, but they do have scholarships. Graduation can help you become a robotics engineer, business analyst, nutritionist, etc.

Military Academies
There are 5 highly selective Military Service Academies that provide a top-tier college education and real-world training to become an officer in the military. Search "Military Service Academies US Department of Defense" to get a list of websites for further exploration of this option.
