Cost of Attendance:

COA is the amount it will cost a student to attend an institution for a full academic period (Fall and Spring.) Note that the COA for a particular institution may vary year to year with changes in tuition, program fees, etc.

Direct Costs + Indirect Costs = COA

Direct Costs:

Are expenses billed directly by the institution that will appear on a student's bill, such as tuition, fees, and room and board (for those students living on campus.)

Tuition + Room & Board

Indirect Costs:

Are expenses associated with attending an institution, but do not appear on a student's bill. Although these costs are not directly paid to an institution, institutions do estimate these costs (Books & Supplies, Transportation, and Personal Expenses) for students attending their institution, and will be included in a student's budget. Indirect expense vary by institution, program, and student.

College Now estimates that students should expect to spend $1,000 per category.
