Tokata Learning Center Programs

The Tokata Learning Center offers two different programming options. Please read the descriptions of both, and then on the next page be sure to indicate which program you are applying for.

TLC Core Program

In the TLC Core Program, students engage in 2 - 4 self-directed courses at one time. Students follow a four block schedule, attending lab classrooms where they get instructional support from content teachers. In addition, students participate in daily advisory and flex periods. The advisory period is designed to promote positive relationship building and academic goal setting. The flex period is designed to actively engage students in activities that promote social, emotional, and physical well-being. The TLC Core Program provides students with structures and support that promote independent learning and provide students with opportunities for self agency. Students in the Core Program work to meet three-week academic goals. At the end of each three-week term, staff will share student progress updates with students and families, and then will determine if any additional support and/or interventions are necessary to improve student engagement and learning. The first day of each new term is scheduled to be a Remote Learning Day, meaning students will work from home with afternoon virtual check-in requirements.
