Join us this fall for a four-week series of free beginner piano lessons! Led by Adam Haines from Mobile Music, this interactive program introduces basic music concepts through hands-on learning, playful games, and plenty of time at the keyboard. Whether you're brand new to music or just curious about the piano, this course is a perfect way to get started. Classes are separated into group courses for children, teens, and adults.

Meet the Teacher

Adam founded Mobile Music in 2009 to share his lifelong passion for the arts. A veteran music educator and performer, he has taught on the Main Line for 17 years, served as a liturgical musician for over 20, and released two albums of original works. He believes the arts are essential to a full, well-rounded life and created Mobile Music to bring music directly to the community.

Registration

Register for only one series in the correct age group. By registering, you are committing to attend all four classes. Summer piano participants are not eligible. Registration is available in person or by phone (610-644-0138).

Funding provided by a grant to the Easttown Library Foundation.
