

New ConstructionRetirement of Buildings

A building owned by The Woodstock Academy may be retired from use when The Woodstock Academy Board of Trustees determines that it is no longer useful to The Academy and/or is unsuitable to the current needs or projected needs of The Academy.

The master facilities plan should be the base for considering the closing of a facility and should require additional study of the possibility of remodeling the facility for other purposes or for changing purposes. Recognizing that the closure of a facility may well be an emotional one, the Board of Trustees will appoint a committee representing a cross-section of opinion in The Academy as well as representing the people in the area served by the facility to study the issue and to recommend alternatives for the Board to consider, including retirement, alternative use, remodeling, continuation in use, or any other recommendations the committee might choose to make.
