SIGNATURE PROGRAMS:

Global Scholars: As part of the Ursuline Education Network (UEN), a designation is offered to seniors completing a curriculum with global focus and demonstrating a commitment to global citizenship, empathy, and advocacy/service. In their senior year, candidates present an independent, academic research project focused on a global issue of concern.

Science Research: A selective three-year sequence of additional science courses focusing on hypothesis development, application of the research process and work with a mentor from the scientific community. Culminates in a formal research paper and presentation.

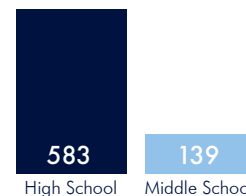

Advantage Program: Select courses are available to earn college credit via St. John's University.

Business: A curriculum with a series of programming that educates students on personal finance and global financial markets. This program equips students with practical knowledge they can apply in college and life beyond. Students have access to the Bloomberg Terminal and the opportunity to earn Bloomberg Certification, an industry credential acknowledged by many financial institutions.

Advisory: Students meet regularly in small groups with their faculty advisor to form meaningful connections.
