

Protecting Information

Share with Care

- Be careful before sharing your information.
- What you do online can have real-life effects. The information you share can impact your privacy and the people around you both now and later. Take a moment to think before you post.
- Your posts might reach more people than you realize, even if your account is private. You can't fully control who sees your profile, photos, videos, or messages, even with privacy settings or apps that erase content after it's viewed or in 24 hours. Anyone who sees your post can take a screenshot or record it.
- What you share can impact others. Always ask for permission before sending or posting photos and videos of others. It can be embarrassing, unfair, or unsafe to share without their permission.

For more information, please visit <https://consumer.ftc.gov/articles/heads-up>