

NEHI locker break-ins on the rise

by Bob Carr

There are thieves in our midst here at Northeast. Each month, a surprising number of lockers are reportedly broken into. At least two break-ins occur each week.

According to Dean Herbert Dixon, in most instances where people report break-in, the lockers aren't actually broken into, but somehow valuables are stolen just the same.

Coach Jerry Austin commented, "Well, what we're getting is people don't lock their locks and they get in the shower. There are definitely thieves. There are people who are going to steal."

Coach Bob Jenkins had pretty much the same theory on lock break-ins, and he added that although no locks have been cut, about five to ten "have been beaten open" this year.

How strong are the lockers? Assistant Principal Jach Stabler said, "I suspect I could get into most any of them. It would take a lot of time, but there have been cases where people have hidden in the locker room after everyone went out. Then they could take all period to get in and then slip out just before the end of the period. All kinds of things can happen. People who are going to steal are going to get pretty good at it."

Sophomore Marc Frye had a Master pad lock on his gym locker until it was cut by the coaches. He was then issued a school lock. Later on in the year his locker was broken into and $40 and a wristwatch was stolen. Interestingly enough, his expensive Pentax camera was not taken. Frye is positive that the locker was locked and says that if his lock was left alone, he wouldn't have lost his money and his watch.

Principal Tom Zachary explained the reason students must use school issued locks. "There is really a need for P.E. teachers to have accessibility to the lockers. It's a health and safety reason as much as any other reason," Zachary said.

Where do most break-ins occur? According to most of the people interviewed, the boys' locker room is the area most heavily plagued by break-ins. The girls' locker room, on the other hand, according to Coach Ann Cantlin, "hasn't had a break in the eight years I've been here."

Coach Mary Miller said that the girls have less of a theft problem "because the girls in the locker room lock all their stuff up mostly." "We very seldom have anything left laying out. Whether the boys do that with their own locks on their lockers, I don't know. But the fact that our lab assistants are up here and the kids know that there is always someone in the locker room keeps the dishonest people out. I think that if the lab assistants on the boys' side will remain upstairs, and the next semester we'll make sure that there is one every period, then that will stop."

This year, says Dixon, the administration is really starting to crack down on this, and Stabler added that the situation appears to be improving.

Christmas time

by Gary Bergeron

The snow falls to the cold, silent ground outside and a person can hear, if he listens closely, the tiny flakes filtering to the white glistening ground. Inside, a fire burns and the glow of a tree embraces the room. It's a Christmas tree, and once again Christmas is here.

Christmas is a time of year when little kids romp through crystal snow, and parents sip egg nog by the glow of an orange and red fire.

However, in Florida the sun shines and the fun of horse-drawn sleighs is replaced with the soaring of frisbees in 70 degree weather.

Christmas trees are universal and the feeling they leave is as if Jack Frost is just outside your door. Lights twinkle and popcorn is strung while Christmas carols fill the air of a house with a warm yuletide spirit.

Santa, too, is known world wide, and as so many kids believe, his sleigh with eight tiny reindeer arrives each Christmas eve and fills their hearts with joy and their closets with toys. However, unsuspecting to each young mind, parents will scramble and fight through crowds and drive to crowded malls miles away just so they can find that perfect gift and receive the joy Christmas morning as the anxious tots' eyes light up with each new present torn open.

The spiritual feeling of Christmas brings that special joy of showing kindness and love to friends and relatives. The feeling of giving is a way of starting over, and the joy of receiving is heartwarming.

Christmas time also gives the chance to show charity with the sound of ringing bells and the sight of a red bucket. The feeling is almost compulsive to drop those few pennies you just got as change into the bucket to hear the warm voice bless you and send you off.

Christmas also offers you a chance to be together with Mrs. Right. All year long you have those "special" feelings, but at Christmas they seem to grow stronger. The romance of sitting next to each other by a fire or to be walking down a beach with the coolness of the air and the mist of the salty water embracing you, leaves you with the idea that nothing could be better and that the joy will never be lost. You know now that sleigh bells and snow and all those things could never hold a candle to a Florida Christmas.

The decorations that pass you as you drive home at night seem to light the sky with red, green, blues and all the colors of the season on almost every house. Santa appears on one roof hopping down a chimney, while choir boys sing in the front yard of another house. All the houses seem to be dressed in their best attire that only appears once a year--at Christmastime.

The music that comes with Christmas has a sense of uniqueness. Whether it be Eddie Arnold or Barry Manilow, the yuletide season seems to be filled with best wishes, joy, romance, and love. The carols are heard everywhere from malls and stores to car radios and home stereos. The music fills the air and opens the way for Christmas' arrival.

The season would seem useless to another being. The racing and running, the money spent and the time endured can only be shared by those who share that special feeling of the holiday season.

The season will end and the trees and the lights and the stockings will be put away for another year, but for now Christmas is here and so is the joy and the happiness. But most of all, the love is here and that is what the season was meant to celebrate--love.

Drama Review: A Guest in the House

The audience roared in a near-applause as the actors and actresses bowed after the mature performance of the latest production here at Northeast. A Guest in the House.

Starring in the play were Anne O'Connor as Anne Proctor, Ron Pate as Douglas Proctor and Christine Young as Evelyn's friend.

surprised job as Douglas Proctor. A very talented young actor, he performed with excellent timing, giving the play a touch of class. ... The original part was a guest. The original lead, Ward Smith, was injured before the performance and should be seen again in following productions to complete the production.

A great deal of time and effort goes into these plays and the students of Northeast should appreciate what the Drama Workshop does for our school. Without these talented people, school would just be a place to go to learn. But thanks to them and their great mentor, Mr. Challenger, the school is able to enjoy a good play and a good performance, something that isn't easy to come by.

Student Assistants use seems questionable

by Patti Farrell

"At first I didn't know how to handle it," said Mrs. Sally Loesch, coordinator of this year's student assistant program. With a new policy and a new set of rules to be followed, many of the approximately 250 students enrolled in the student assistant program this year were confused.

It would be easier to put the students on the attendance sheet and go from there. According to the new policy, the student assistants could not do just about anything. They were not allowed to grade papers or tests, record grades in the grade book, type tests, handle money, mark grade sheets or attendance forms, and run off tests. So, what exactly are the student assistants allowed to do?

Well, thanks to Mrs. Loesch, she had a few of the new rules changed. The assistants can now grade papers and run off tests, but that is still not very much to do. Next semester there won't be as many assistants according to Mrs. Loesch. She will be approving all the students before letting them enroll. "It's the class has been a dumping ground. When the counselors couldn't find another elective class, they would just dump them here," said Loesch.

The reason for all these new rules is the problem of students skipping the class they're supposed to be an assistant in. The students skip the class and loiter in the hallways, disturbing other teachers. "It's the teachers fault as well as the students. The teachers sign up too many assistants and can't keep track of which ones should be there and which ones shouldn't," Loesch says. "Also, the coaches sign up assistants and let them work out during the period."

The Fine Arts' Club, sponsored by Mrs. Nancy Fencosa and Mr. Sam Wharton, is off to a progressive start this year.

To start with, the Art Club has a new sponsor: Mrs. Fencosa. "I was semi-involved with the Art Club last year," says Fencosa, "and this year, being a sponsor I'm able to be fully involved with it." Fencosa says she likes the job and says the Art Club is a fine group of students.

The Art Club showed top school spirit this year during the Vallarta when their float won the float contest. The float was called "Stump the Tornado" and had a huge football snaker stomping on a crushed tornado. "Most of the members came in every day after school to work on the float," says Fencosa, "and some even came on Saturdays to work."

This year on December 10, the Art Club will be making their annual trip to All Children's Hospital to paint the windows. There are four stories of windows to be painted and the windows that can't be painted will have posters hung on them. All the patients' names will be painted along with the lobby and the doors. "It's a big job and it takes all day," commented Fencosa, "the members won't be paid for the job, but the hospital does supply all the materials needed for painting the windows."

Mrs. Lella Barwell, sponsor of the National Art Honor Society, says that Northeast is the first school in Pinellas County to have this chapter. Only one other school in Florida has a NAHS chapter. The students must do service projects for the school or community to promote the club as part of their grade. One project being done is the painting of a mural on the side wall of the cafeteria by Todd Biondillo. Randy Purkett will be making a plaque for the front of the school, and Jim Ballard will be promoting the NAHS at a convention along with organizing students to draw up for the front of the Soundings magazine.

As it stands now, these students are not members but nonmembers. Next semester, they will be chosen on how they're projects are coming along, their art ability, character and their willingness to serve the community and school with their artistic talent.

There is a point system by which the students try to accumulate points based on their talent, and character. With so many points, they will be given an Honor Award.

The students are also supposed to set examples for the other students by bringing their art to the attention of the school and the community.

The nominees for the National Art Honor Society are: Randy Purkett, Todd Biondillo, James Ballard, April Blum, Bari Paul, Azeline King, Debbie Krowowski, Luan Laughry, Gina Merchant, William Palenik, Greg Ritter, David Taylor, Karen "Buddy" Hampton, Sharon Thompson, Randall Burkett,

The 1981 graduating seniors will be holding their farewell to NEHS very soon. And, although many are distressed in leaving, several others are anxious to go.

"I'm glad I'm graduating early because after a while school started to become a hassle," stated one early graduating senior, Greg Campanian.

"My job started to interfere with my school work and it caused a lot of problems."

Fine Arts Club shows 'top school spirit'

by Patti Arrais!

The Fine Arts' Club, sponsored by Mrs. Nancy Fencosa and Mr. Sam Wharton, is off to a progressive start this year.

To start with, the Art Club has a new sponsor: Mrs. Fencosa. "I was semi-involved with the Art Club last year," says Fencosa, "and this year, being a sponsor I'm able to be fully involved with it." Fencosa says she likes the job and says the Art Club is a fine group of students.

Final year for early graduation by Chrsity Young

As the end of the semester closes, many NEHS seniors will be preparing for early graduation. Approximately one-hundred seniors plan on graduating in January, while nearly five-hundred and twenty will be waiting until June.

Last year approximately 200 seniors have passed the State Assessment test and have had a minimum of 19 credits, 15 of which must be earned between 10th and 12th grade. This year the passing of the State Assessment test remains a requirement, but the number of credits required has been changed to twenty. The credits are 2 credits in math, 1 credit in science, 2 credits in P.E., and 3½ credits in English. In 10th grade only four credits are required for students to be promoted to 11th grade. But, like last year, at least 15 credits must be earned.

"Not enough seniors would show up," stated Mr. Perry Sheely, a guidance counselor at NEHS.

"It was decided last only one ceremony would be held per year, and all graduating seniors would be invited to attend.

The majority of seniors usually wait until June to graduate. Many of the NEHS faculty have been busy preparing for the June graduation by organizing the ordering of announcements, caps, gowns, senior pins, Grad '82, and the award program.

NEHS math teacher reelected to legislature

by Karla Weisskopf

Mr. George Heber, a math teacher at NEHS, represents southern Pinellas County citizens as the district 58 state representative. Recently, in the November elections, Heber was elected to a fourth, two year term in the legislature.

When asked whether or not he favored prayer in schools, he replied that there's no problem. He feels that it should be decided by the school board and that it is not the state's job. He believes in meditation or voluntary prayer, but not mandatory prayer. With the talk of many politicians about bringing the decisions and regulations of education back to the local school boards instead of the Federal Government, regarding certain things, Heber said that from the Federal funding standpoint, we should retain the Department of Education.

Heber voted for the original financial disclosure proposal, the way it was written up in the proposed form. But after it was watered down, he voted against it.

When asked how views on the Equal Rights Amendment, he said that they are laws right now, but they are not enforced. When asked why the laws aren't enforced, Heber said that he was voted against it because he represents South Pinellas County which is predominantly Republican and many of the people he represents are against the amendment. He said if the people want it, he'd vote for it.

Concerning the question of whether the Supreme Court justices should be elected or appointed, Heber voted for the justices to be elected on his first vote, but after he had researched the matter more and had listened to what the people wanted, he voted to have the justices appointed. Under the present state system, the governor and the Judicial Nominating Committee appoint some Judges. Democrats will usually be chosen for the positions under the present administration. It depends greatly on which party holds the administration because everytime there is a change in party in the top positions, that some party is usually going to fill the appointed positions with members of their party.

Heber has served on the following committees: ethics, elections, Veterans Affairs, Education (K-12), and he was just named the chairman of the Pinellas delegation. Some of the things Heber is working on right now are: to keep the public finance of campaigns (matching funds), single member legislative districts and to cut down on the area a person has to represent. This would allow districts to represent their areas and the citizens living in those areas would have one person whom they could call their representative. This way there would be one representative instead of five representatives for this area, which is the way the present system works at this time.

Grad Night '81 will be May 9-10, from Saturday night through Sunday morning at Walk Down World. The "Magic Kingdom" has been reserved for graduates and their dates. All seniors planning to go must go on one of the Heber says he votes his convictions to the people, but bans his votes on fiscal matters, using facts.

When going up to the state capital in April and May for 60 days, he works on his committee and passes legislation for the following year. Starting in January he will be attending 3 committee meetings a month in the state capital.

As chairman of the Pinellas delegation, he will listen to the pros and cons of legislation pertinent to his area.

Heber says there are three reasons why he went into politics:

1. He loves working with the people and dealing with problems.
2. He has lived here all his life and feels that he can relate and represent St. Petersburg's needs in Tallahassee.
3. He has always followed the issues and is interested in government on a state level.

"I treat everybody as a campaign day. At election time I campaign door to door. I'm a grass roots campaigner," said Heber. "Sometimes it is time consuming, but I welcome the challenge," said Heber. Heber is a graduate of Northeast High. He has a finance degree from Florida State, a Masters' degree in business administration and a teaching certificate from the University of South Florida. Besides being a state representative and a math teacher here at NEHS, Heber has been a bank examiner and has a real estate license.

"It has been very interesting in my teaching position. Time will tell how long I stay. A lot of things have changed since I've been in school. I wish more young people would get involved in politics," said Heber.

Kelly: From bench to All County

By Paul Cain

Last year, an offensive tackle he was bench after only playing in three games. But now Kelly switched over to offensive tackle this year and proved his talent to everyone by making the first string all-county team, starting at his newly discovered position.

Kelly was dumbfounded by receiving such an honor and stated that, "It just never entered my mind. I was out there playing for the team and the school. I was really working for a scholarship."

"I didn't look at myself as any major threat in my defensive player," said Kelly. "I went out there and made the hole."

The switch from defensive tackle to offensive tackle was an easy one for Kelly. His only complaint was that, "You can't compare an offensive player statistically with a defensive player. Let's say some defensive player made 10 sacks. Well, an offensive player can make 10 sacks and really can't get credited for it."

Leading the way up the middle of the offensive line was Kelly's mentor, who with other running backs Henry Ford or Leland Gibson following his blocking. "It felt good with those two guys behind me," said Kelly. "It really did. We ran a lot of plays to my side and it really felt good to have them shove through a hole I opened."

Kelly attributes his success to his strength, which he acquired by using the highly emphasized weightlifting program started by head football coach Jerry Austin. "It helped quite a bit," said Kelly. "If you don't have the strength to blow defensive player off the line, he'll stuff you in the hole and bust up the play."

Kelly's coach of making him pass for Austin. "It's the best coach I've ever played for." But Kelly feels a problem with him is that, all players get to have their coaches by the end of the season. But you get to realize that they are there for your benefit. You have to learn to get up with all the yelling and screaming. Especially when you come out with a season like we did. It's a start coming to Kelly said of Austin then. "He did something for you to get a scholarship. I've been written for a lot of southern colleges from Virginia, North Carolina, and Tennessee. I'd like to go to the University of Kentucky. Louisiana. It's not a real big school. They have the coaches I want to major in. I'm going to major in both, game and wildlife management."

After good seasons and a good team, you realize the scholarship offers usually

Almost all high school football players dream of someday reaching the status of professional football. Contrary to this, Kelly is more interested in his academic career. "I'd like to be a pro football player, which I highly doubt. I'd like it. But I'm not too worried about it. I don't think I'd make the pros. I'm too small. I'd have to be some misanthropic genius."

Headed being a football player, Kelly is included in many other school activities. He is this year's President of the Soccer Club, was Secretary of the Internet Club, and is on the wrestling team. "I'm wrestling this year in either the 222 pound weight class or the unlimited class. He now weighs approximately 217 pounds. I'm gonna stay in shape so I'll be ready in case I get a scholarship."

One feature that characterizes Kelly could be his light blue headband, which he donned for every football game this season. "It started at the beginning of the summer," said Kelly, "to keep the hair out of my eyes. But then it sorta became symbolic to me and I wore it every game. It was kinda my image."

Keith Haxter, a utility lineman who often backed up Kelly, summed Kelly's performance this year. "I would say as a whole, Dave has come a long way."

"I was out there playing for the team and the school. I was really working for a scholarship."

The year of the Viking

By Peter Blair

The Northeast varsity football team led a surprisingly exciting season ending up in second place, tied with the Clearwater Tornados at 8-2. They finished just behind the Lakewood Spartans and the Dunedin Falcons at 9-1.

The Vikings began the season winning their first 8 games. The Vikings lost their sixth game 12-6 in overtime against the Clearwater Tornados at 8-2. They finished just behind the Lakewood Spartans and the Dunedin Falcons at 9-1.

Games one and two were very well played games. Against Dixie Hollow, the Vikings won 20-0, scoring two touchdowns and a safety. The second game was played at Largo High School against the Largo Packers, which the Vikings won 20-0. At this point the Vikings were 2-0.

During the third and fourth games, the Vikings kept their winning streak going by beating Gibbs and Countryside. The home game against Gibbs was the third of the season, and the Vikings beat them by a touchdown, 21-14. The fourth game was played at and against Countryside. The Vikings won that by a score of 21-21.

The fifth game was against the old Northeast rival, the St. Petersburg Green Devils. This game wasn't much of a rivalry or a fight. The varsity team clobbered the Devils by scoring two touchdowns and only allowing St. Pete a safety, ending the game at 14-2. That put Northeast at 5-0, tied with Lakewood, Clearwater and Dunedin for first place at that time.

Game six was very disappointing for the Vikings. They lost their first game in the 1980 season. Coach Jerry Austin did not blame one person for the loss, but said it was a team loss. Pinellas Park put the first points on the scoreboard late in the second half, but then they missed the conversion attempt. Northeast scored on a 70 yard drive down the field, but also missed the conversion attempt, evening the game at 6-6. At the beginning of the Game seven was Halloween night at Boca Ciega playing the Pirates. At this game all of the ghosts and goblins must have been on Northeast's side because the Vikings stomped the Pirates 26-10. At this point the Vikings were still tied for first place in the PCC with Lakewood, Clearwater and Dunedin.

Game nine was the toughest and most disappointing game. The Vikings played at Lakewood against the Spartans and lost 9-0. The Vikings had at least four chances to score, but didn't. It rained the whole game and made the ball slippery, which made it hard to pass. The Vikings were also called for a lot of penalties in the game.

In the last game of the season Northeast played Seminole at home. The Vikings scored a touchdown with 13 seconds left. The Vikings played a good game. This whole season was very well coached and well played.

Next year should be a tough but exciting season. Maybe next year the Vikings will win the PCC. If the Vikings have the coaches coaching like they did this year and with a lot of their talent returning, they have a very good chance.

Wrestlers shoot for .500

The Vikings' wrestling team is shorting for a .500 season this year, according to Coach Bill Dudley. This may prove to be a challenge because of the graduation of five quality wrestlers. A Federal 110 pound heavyweight runner-up, Mike McShane.

There still are a few bright stars in the Northeast lineup, though. The first would have to be senior Phil Rizzo, who is the best of the quality of the graduation of five quality wrestlers. A Federal 110 pound heavyweight runner-up, Mike McShane.

Another bright spot is senior Mark Erickson, who just moved here from Chicago. "I can't tell you how much he's helped us. He's been on the mat 15 seconds before he pinned his opponent," Dudley said. "He works real hard in practice. He should place in the district last year in 149 pounds. This year, he is wrestling in the 160 pound weight category. Babcock just moved up from J.V., but is very aggressive and looks sharp. He recorded a first round pin in the first match."

One main problem the Vikings have is that this year there is no overpowering heavyweight wrestler. However, Dudley feels that junior Paul Cain has the potential of becoming a contender in the Northeast tradition of outstanding heavyweights like McShane and Joe Wickline.

In the first match, against Clearwater, the Vikings walked away victorious, 40-27. However, Phil Rizzo took his first loss. He moved up a weight class to wrestle Shawn Young who placed in the AAU Nationals. Also, Eric Scheminik re-injured his arm and will be out for the season. His arm will probably require surgery.

The one thing that happened in this match is that the heavyweights won. They outscored Clearwater 15-9 in team points. First round pins were recorded by Matt Thornton and David Kelly. If this continues, the Vikings should continue to win.

Golf team wins title

The golf team has wrapped up its 1980 season with a 14-5 record and a second straight city title.

The team placed three golfers in the top 10 in the conference. Those golfers are Captain Ken Betz who came in fourth, Joe Charles who came in seventh, and Co-Captain Dave Binford who came in eighth.

"The team did fine this year. Now we are looking forward to our third defense of the district championship," said Ms. Joan Vernotzy, the team's coach.
