Digital Citizenship Week Announced

Digital Citizenship Week takes place during the third week of October. This annual campaign is a perfect reminder for families to focus on promoting a healthy, balanced, and positive approach to media and technology use for all ages.

In today's interconnected world, being a good digital citizen is just as important as being a good neighbor. It's about using technology ethically, responsibly, and effectively.

This week, take some time to discuss and practice the essential skills needed to navigate the digital landscape with confidence and kindness. This is also a good time to unplug and connect with your family.

Here are five key areas to focus on:

1. Digital Well-Being & Media Balance: How does time online make us feel? It's about finding a healthy balance and setting personal boundaries.
2. Digital Footprint & Privacy: Everything we do online leaves a mark. This covers understanding what a digital footprint is, how to keep personal information private, and how to build a positive online reputation.
3. Digital Etiquette & Empathy: This is the "Golden Rule" of the internet: Treat others online as you would like to be treated. It includes avoiding cyberbullying and communicating respectfully.
4. Media Literacy & Critical Thinking: Learning to tell the difference between what's real and what's fake, recognizing bias, and critically evaluating online information.
5. Online Safety & Security: Protecting devices and personal information using strong passwords, knowing how to spot scams (like phishing), and understanding who to talk to if something feels wrong online.

Let Digital Citizenship Week be the start of a year-round commitment to helping your children become smart, safe, and positive members of the digital community.
