

HALLWAY DECORATING

By: Jenna

Grant Union High's hallways turned into full-blown art exhibits—with a little school pride and a lot of duct tape. Each class brought the heat (and possibly a fire hazard), transforming their halls into themed masterpieces that had students saying, “Wow!” and janitors saying, “Why?”

Freshmen: 80s Disco Fever 🌐

The Class of 2028 went full retro with neon lights, funky silhouettes, and one rogue fog machine that caused three teachers to walk into the wrong classroom.

Sophomores: Ducks vs. Beavers 🦆🦫

Nothing says school pride like turning your hallway into a football battleground. The sophomores repped the Oregon rivalry hard.

Juniors: Minion Madness 🍌👾

The juniors were supposed to go full Minion mania. Instead, their hallway looked like a Minion pity party. One half-deflated balloon and a lone yellow sock on the floor (probably from the morph suit no one wore).

Seniors: Movie Madness The seniors crushed it with their Pixar theme—Toy Story, Finding Nemo, and Monsters, Inc.

Everywhere you looked, Buzz Lightyear was ready to “to infinity and beyond,” Nemo was swimming strong (definitely not confused), and Sulley was the cuddliest monster on campus.

Woody's hat stayed put (miracles do happen), and the “Just Keep Swimming” vibe kept spirits high all week.

Judges agreed:
“A colorful, creative masterpiece”
