Bethany Helps Prepare Alumna for Pastorate

by Lois (Johns) Kaufmann ('66)

"What good will this do me in later life?" This perennial question has crossed the lips of generations of students, mine included. It can be a valid question indicating a desire for relevant learning. Its danger lies in the questioner's limited ability to envision the future. As a Bethany student in the mid-60s, I never imagined that I would be called to be part of a pastoral team.

Bethany nourished my love for the church and convinced me of God's love for humanity.

My first call, to be a teacher, came to me in my early teens. So my years at Bethany and Goshen College were focused toward that imaginable future.

Tuition Increase Slows

On November 15 Bethany's board approved a modest 4.9% tuition increase for 2000-01, the smallest increase since 1994!

This increase, which sets high school tuition at $6,175 and middle school tuition at $4,600, will pay for salary and benefit increases and inflation in the non-personnel portion of the budget. The increase also pays for selected "extra" costs such as transportation for field trips and English and Bible texts, which on encouragement from parents have been incorporated into tuition.

The relatively modest fee increase is possible because the board has met its 1995 goal to increase the portion of the

Feasibility Task Force Implemented

As part of implementing the recommendations from the building feasibility study completed in March 1999 by Laudick/Brown & Associates, the Bethany board has established a Feasibility Task Force.

The task force's mandate is to lead in implementing the recommendations of last winter's feasibility study in preparation for a possible capital campaign to fund much-needed new middle school and related facilities.

To date the task force has focused on seeking ways of more effectively gathering counsel from and involving a cross-section of Mennonite and other-than-Mennonite persons, including

Young Woman of the Year

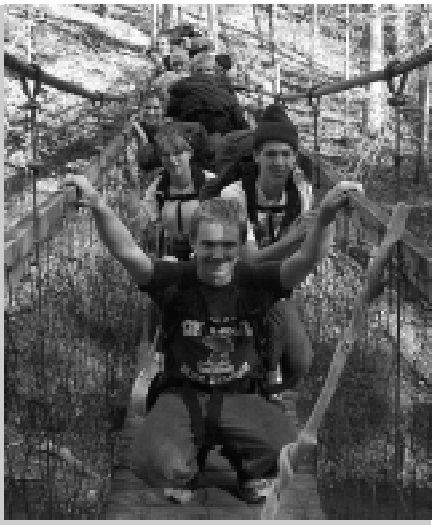

Senior Rochelle Zehr was one of 13 recognized as Young Woman of the Year in the fifth annual Elkhart County Salute to Women.

Rochelle has excelled academically and should qualify for the Indiana Academic Honors Diploma. She has participated actively in her church youth group, including a mission trip to Haiti in 1998. She was a starting defender for the 1997 girls soccer sectional champions and pitcher for the 1999 softball sectional champions.

Interterm Appreciation

An elderly gentleman, who has diabetes and whose wife is blind, wrote these heartfelt words in a letter of thanks to participants in the senior serviceterm to Indianapolis: "Two girls cleaned our closets, washed windows, did up our curtains, cleaned the refrigerator, and so much more. We can't thank them enough. God bless them always."

Other service groups worked for Habitat for Humanity in Birmingham, Ala., for service agencies in Philadelphia, Pa., and locally for LaCasa, Camp Friedenswald, and Greencroft's nursing center. Other students studied cars, theater, lifetime sports, caring for the elderly, and science in Panama.

The backpacking Interterm group crosses a suspension bridge during their four-day trek through Kentucky's Red River Gorge.

Choices

"Every choice you make, big or small, will affect your life down the road," said guest-speaker Megan Adams.

Megan spoke of her choice to begin drinking alcohol at the age of 12 that led her into making other poor choices such as use of cigarettes and drugs, engaging in premarital sex, and accepting abusive relationships.

Megan, about to return to prison for illegally purchasing prescription drugs, noted that eventually there are consequences for poor choices, which for her has included addictions, separation from her children, and jail.

She also shared how making good choices has positive consequences. Most significantly, her recent choice to follow Christ has given her strength to fight her addictions, to face her powerlessness as an inmate, and to enjoy life.

Sports Be-attitudes

Social studies teacher Brent Reinhardt and several students challenged Bethany students and faculty to be conscious of how we respond to others in the context of sports.

Brent suggested that it is difficult to control instantaneous reactions to events we disagree with. However, "after the initial reaction we can choose how we will respond and we need to think about what we will do. How can sports bring out the best, not the worst, in us?"

Feeding the Multitudes

Dr. Ishak Ahmed, who is part of a microscopic Christian minority in northeast India, urged middle school students to prepare for mission by learning basic skills in areas such as music and computer technology and learning professions of service such as doctors, nurses, or teachers.

He also challenged students to not look out for ourselves, but to "be like the boy who allowed Jesus to use his lunch to feed 5000 people and allow Jesus to bless our lives and use it for thousands of people."

Infatuation vs. True Love

"I do not believe in love at first sight—attraction, yes, but not love," said John Drescher. "Love is like a plant and needs to be nurtured by mutual respect and appreciation."

Drescher, a former pastor, editor and author of numerous books on love, marriage, and relationships, urged teenagers to not go steady but to "date and rate," taking time to find the qualities desired in a mate. "Keep your eyes wide open before marriage—and close them at least half after marriage," he advised.

Drescher suggested numerous ways to determine what is infatuation and what is love. "Love is more than a mere feeling that changes with each passing mood and it is not synonomous with sex. True love stirs you to be a better person and enriches you both."

Keeping Pace

Ginny (Davidhizar) Birky ('66), Albany, Ore., serves on Western Mennonite School's board of directors and chairs the policy subcommittee.

LeRoy Mast ('67), pastor of Pleasant Valley Mennonite Church in Hammondsport, N.Y., has become involved in violence prevention discussion in his community as groups have come to him expecting Mennonites to have effective ways to respond and teach alternatives to violence.

Dave Bauman ('72), Summerdale, Pa., testified on flexibility for quality programs and innovative ideas for quality teachers before the U.S. House of Representatives' Education Subcommittee of Postsecondary Education, Training, and Life-Long Learning Committee on Education and the Workforce on May 5. He is currently president-elect of the Pennsylvania Science Teachers Association and director of Capital Area Institute for Mathematics and Science.

Bob Hostetler ('76) and wife Nur, Las Vegas, Nev., gave birth to daughter Jasmine on September 25.

Duane Leatherman ('76) died November 8 in Lancaster, Pa., following a 15-year illness.

Rebecca Martin ('76) and husband James Picht, Cleveland, Ohio, gave birth to daughter Emma on January 24, 1999. Rebecca completed a degree in massage therapy in March.

Timo Ovaska ('78), who was an exchange student from Finland, teaches chemistry at Connecticut College in New London. He has one child in college and one at home.

Terri (Stoltzfus) Yeater ('80) married Ed Swoveland on September 4 in Goshen.

Steve Voran ('81) married Gwendolyn Grasse on October 16 at Calico Rock, Arkansas.

Class of '69 Reunion

The class of '69 held its 30-year reunion on November 13 at Goshen's Greencroft Senior Center. Thirty-three class members and spouses enjoyed dinner and sharing.

The class of '64 held its 35-year class reunion on September 18 at the Oakwood Inn in Syracuse, Ind. Fifty-two people attended the evening of dinner and sharing.

The class of '89 met for its ten-year reunion on September 25 at Mirror Valley Retreat Center near Union, Mich. Much of the time was spent reminiscing and updating through informal times of talk and walks in the woods.

Future Class Reunions

The class of '55 is planning a weekend retreat at Camp Mack, Milford, Ind., for its 45-year reunion on June 2-3, 2000. Committee members are Lewis Hochstedler (219 773-4335), Marietta Slabach (219 773-3397), and Willard Slabaugh (219 862-2420).

The class of '60 is planning its 40-year reunion for July 1, 2000 at Bread & Chocolate in Goshen. Reunion coordinators are Shirley (Miller) Miller, 67353 CR 27, Goshen, IN 46526 and Dorcas (Miller) Steider, 60427 CR 21, Goshen, IN 46528.

Hello, Bethany Christian Schools calling. . .

On six evenings and one Saturday morning in November, this phrase was repeated by 21 people—students, alumni, and board members assisting development director Susan Gingerich in contacting alumni from classes graduating between 1955 and 1975.

Of the 1,426 alum in those classes, 33 percent were reached by phone and pledged $11,370 toward the goal of $43,000—an increase of $1,800 from last year. Individual pledges ranged from $10 to $2,000 with the average pledge of $43. Alumni who mailed in donations earlier were not contacted by phone.

The classes of '58 and '74 pledged the most dollars, while the class of '55 had the highest percentage (71%) of classmates contacted make pledges.

Alumni contributions are applied towards budget items such as tuition assistance, classroom equipment, and general operating expenses.

In the spring of 2000, classes graduating between 1976 and 1999 will be contacted via phonathon for pledges and contributions.

Service Participants

Five 1999 Bethany graduates are participating in Mennonite Board of Mission's Service Adventure program:

Kristin Buller, Albany, Ore.
Landon Yoder, Albuquerque, N.M.
Mike Malott, Johnstown, Pa.
Dan Charles, Norristown, Pa.
Conrad Burkholder, Raleigh, N.C.

Hartzler Remembered for Service

Harold Hartzler, board member since 1989, died of a heart attack while jogging on November 6. He is survived by his wife Rachel and four children who have attended Bethany: Joel ('92), A. Jon ('95), Carrie ('00), and Dori ('03).

Harold was one of Bethany's most avid supporters. His goal as a board member was to "equip young people for Christ-centered service in whatever area they desire to serve." He especially hoped that "some Bethany students will be motivated to choose full-time church service."

During a devotional in his last board meeting, Harold drew on John 14 to encourage us "with the promise of comfort in our 'Father's house,' in contrast to much of what is happening in the world. As Christians we enjoy the promise of a spiritual place where our spirits can connect with God's spirit."

In addition to his involvement on the board, Harold and his wife Rachel have volunteered significant hours in beautifying the Friendship Garden and assisting with the Spring Fun Fest.

Harold Hartzler was willing to help Bethany in many ways, even paying to have his face painted at the kid's carnival connected with the annual Spring Fun Fest.

cost of education that tuition covers from 47.4% to 70%. Bethany's board deeply appreciates the perseverance of families and congregations in bearing significant tuition fee loads in recent years as it has strived to reestablish a firm financial footing.

Growth in Enrollment

Despite significant fee increases in recent years, enrollment has increased as well: 28% in the high school since 1994-95 and 79% in the middle school since its establishment in 1996-97.

As noted in the previous issue of the Bulletin, much of the enrollment increase is due to significantly larger numbers of Protestants and Catholics choosing to attend Bethany—Anabaptist-Mennonite enrollment has also increased slightly. A frequent reason given for this rapid growth is the quality programming and teaching Bethany provides.

individuals with business and significant church/community connections.

The task force members are: Cindy Hawkins, Eldon Heatwole, Sherm Kauffman, Bob and Sue Miller, Fred Ramser, Bertha Bontrager Rhodes, Lovina Rutt, Kay Schrock, Dale Shenk, consultants Chip Brown and Michael Laudick, and staff members Allan Dueck and Susan Gingerich.

Communication with Constituents

The task force is also exploring ways to strengthen communication between Bethany and constituent groups such as parents and congregations. Ways Bethany now communicates with congregations include:

- quarterly Memo to pastors
- quarterly Bulletin to households
- church newsletter announcements
- monthly news to youth sponsors
- calendar and athleic passes to pastors and youth sponsors
- advocates in local congregations
- Fun Fest reps for spring fundraiser
- music groups in worship services and resource junior high groups
- meals with pastors
- forum for pastors to hear about Bible curriculum
- principal Allan Dueck and Bible teacher Dale Shenk available for preaching
- meetings with church council/reps on special issues (e.g. partnership plan)

Alumni Pastoring in...

Ear Falls, Ontario

While a student at Eastern Mennonite College in 1958-59, Ralph Hartman ('57) heard God first calling him to ministry as a missionary aviator for Northern Light Gospel Missions (now Impact North Ministries).

So in 1961 Ralph moved to Red Lake, Ontario, where for 14 years he flew missionary personnel and supplies to over ten different reservations and towns as part of the Mission's outreach to native peoples. While his role was primarily as an aviator, on occasion he participated with the ministry teams as well.

"Bethany definitely impacted my life for future service and ministry," says Ralph, specifically mentioning appreciation for staff, gospel and choir tours, and developing relationships with Christian friends—including Carolyn Schrock ('59) whom he married in 1962!

In 1966 under the Mission's auspices, Ralph established a Sunday school, and two years later a worship service, in Ear Falls—40 miles south of Red Lake. Then in 1982 they opened a Christian school which uses the individualized and Bible-based Accelerated Christian Education curriculum. The school currently has 13 students spanning grades 1-12.

In addition to assisting Ralph with church work, Carolyn occasionally did mission-related nursing while raising their four children, now grown. Currently she works for a government-sponsored home health care organization that fits well with the outreach goals of their church.

Birmingham, Alabama

"The greatest joy in ministry for me has been seeing myself, my family, and others changed by the power of Jesus Christ," says Doug Horst ('87), associate pastor at Southside Mennonite Fellowship in Birmingham, Ala.

Doug, who has been a youth leader at Southside since graduating from college in 1992, first recognized God's call to use his gifts in youth ministry during his first year at Hesston College. A close friend planted the seed which was then nurtured by other friends, college professors, youth ministry classes, and experiences as a camp counselor.

Doug also credits Bethany with helping prepare him for leadership in at least two ways. First, both faculty and peers challenged him to take on leadership roles for which he wasn't always sure he was qualified. Second, several faculty members built his confidence by encouraging him in his gifts and roles.

"My coaches, Jim Buller and Dan Bodiker, were instrumental in this process. They told me they needed me (which was a great encouragement), but they also taught me my role on their teams. This taught me how to seek and find the roles within God's team for which he has best shaped me."

Doug married Becky Steiner in 1993. They have a one-year-old son, Josiah, and are expecting a second child in June.

I lived into that call by teaching in both public and Mennonite schools, and for several years homeschooling my own children: Britt ('92), Austin ('94), Reid ('99), and Lane ('01).

When Britt and Austin were students at Bethany and Reid and Lane were back "in" school at New Paris Elementary, I began working as the administrative elder for Assembly Mennonite Church where my husband Jim and I were members. Eventually I was invited to shift my focus to pastoral care of the congregational unit.

As part of a three-person pastoral team, I now care for the congregation using my strengths in Christian education, administration, and spirituality, while learning from the other team members' strengths in preaching, pastoral care, outreach, and small group care.

As a student at Bethany I had no clue that I was being prepared for pastoral ministry. The academic disciplines of thinking, organizing, and communicating that I valued as necessary for teaching, also prepared me for a variety of pastoral assignments, as well as my on-going seminary study.

While I don't remember many facts from Bible or any other classes, my years at Bethany nourished my love for the church and convinced me of God's love for humanity. Both in the classroom and as part of a student-initiated project with the Salvation Army in Goshen, I was encouraged to contribute to the work of Christ's kingdom.

Perhaps most significantly, I was encouraged to nurture my relationship with God, and through that relationship to remain sensitive to God's will for my life, surprises and all.

From the Principal

Allan Dueck

Our boys basketball team this fall played the first three games against some of its strongest opponents of the season. Knowing that, students on the Chapel Committee suggested that now would be a good time to plan a chapel on the theme of appropriate attitudes for Christian fans.

During the chapel, while several students mimed different kinds of competitive situations, two other students led the audience in cheering. While half the chapel was invited to cheer appropriately, the other half was asked to cheer inappropriately. We had no difficulty carrying out this exercise correctly. Negative comments towards the opponents and catcalls towards the officials typified the inappropriate comments, while affirmations for good plays and positive cheers for our team represented appropriate comments.

As a person who devoted a great deal of energy and time during my school and college years to competitive athletics, I possess a keen appreciation for sport and feel plenty of adrenaline during a closely contested game. From a player's point of view, I recognize the positive impact of affirmative cheering. I also know that, in the heat of the moment, human nature can get in the way as players and fans are tempted to resort to put-downs or excuses.

What was heartening about the "sports fans be-attitudes" chapel was not so much that students responded correctly in that artificial laboratory setting. Rather, it was the fact that students understood that Christ's call to follow him in daily life includes the athletic field no less than Bible class and includes fans no less than players.

This issue is relevant to all of us—athletes and fans. Sport has a wonderful capacity to challenge us to push our God-given bodies to perform with strength, agility, and grace. It has the capacity to teach us to cooperate and to fulfill roles that help the whole team. It allows us to experience the joy of winning and permits us to grow through losing. As we follow Bethany's teams during the coming season, let us be challenged by the students' chapel: to cheer in an uplifting and constructive manner as befits followers of Jesus Christ.
