Storyscape

Project

A video game where it guides new authors through the processes of writing a novel. It will be an indie game coded by Oliver and hopefully it will assist new authors in creating their own masterpieces.

The player will make their world, character, and systems in the world and play through the game. Each level will consist of people writing, defeating monsters or enemies, or solving puzzles. The idea is that people will generate their stories in real time while playing the game.