CLASS PROPHECY

e, two, three, six— ho hum— sixty eight, sixty nine, seventy, 1970?!! Marian, old pal, please nd one of your ambulances over yet! Just give me time to borrow some money to pay my rance premium. It's due to Nybeck's "Live Now But Not Forever" life insurance agency in two
The only thing to do was to have one of Madame Barbara Trom's psychiatric problem treat-Soon Madame Trom was applying and producing the solution while her secretary, Miss Ken-jotted down the instructions I was to follow. er as I hurried on down the street a familiar voice shouted my name. I turned and saw Vincent with the usual stack of newspapers under his arm. After one of his rousing sales talks, I was to buy a copy of his home printed papers entitled "Louis Guess-It". The front page headlines azing accounts of how forest ranger, Wayne Saker, discovered a raging fire and Dolores Pyle, al bucket brigade, succeeded in putting it out. Still just a kid at heart, I turned to the comic nd found Angela Coppini's cartoons on "That Old Gang of Mine" very amusing, especially the wing Jim Smith on his chicken farm riding his little giant chickens.

ce I had been unconsciously following my nose down the street, I came to an abrupt halt in an eat shop with a sign "Waitress Wanted" in the window. I entered and was greeted by the manager, Pat Nesemeier. After inquiring about the sign, I was informed that Margaret Sam-rad left the shop to try her luck at raising asparagus on the Sahara Desert and that she had athleen Halverson to cook in her establishment. The Cactus Inn. Pat turned on the radio and ned to Gary Meyer croon an old favorite called "Mule Train" but before the mules reached stination he was interrupted by John Culden Borne Maust commenting on the world affairs. By e, I had to rush and that I did, down the street until a theater with "Starring Duane and Jimmy g" caught my eye. I waved at Phyllis Burner in the ticket booth but the crowd kept me from closer.

alked on until I came to my destination, an old brick building with a dignified sign of "Savings ". My interest being in the latter, I marched straight to the office of G. W. Sprecher. After business session, I emerged with a handsome sum of money in my pocket, but being the
I am, I couldn't resist taking a chance on "Lope Along Lucy" with Don Bartholomew as She couldn't lose. But when I saw Lucy loping in last I yelled, "No, no, no!" Then alas my ame to an end because I woke up in Dr. Gordon Peterson's dentist chair with his nurse Carol on trying to awaken me from the ether I was given to have a few teeth pulled. Sweet dreams

Folstrom, Shirley Samson, Roger Lindgren, Jean Carlson, Ivan Berg, Gordon Peterson, Hanson, Patricia Bassette, Wayne Kilpatrick, Darwin Rott, Donald Lindgren, Paul Gerald Gregor, Bonnie Moen, Robert Hassen, Dale Ruff.

The band, under the direction of Mr. Ole Syverson, has expanded to include thirty-five members. Rehearsals are held every Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday mornings.

Members purchased new uniforms for the band. These uniforms are green with trimmings. The band function is marching. The band appeared at Casselton for the 4-H convention in the parade. February held a special significance as they marched in the Jack. They appeared in the Christmas Musicales and provided entertainment in the spring.

On beat and a huff and a puff the strains of a march come floating through the air. The band supplied much entertainment in hopes of livening up the festivities. The pep band also played popular arrangements and a new fight song.

Winning all their games except one, West Fargo had a right to be proud of their team. But that was not all, three of West Fargo's players, Greg Sprecher, Duane Flick, and Bill Quenette, were chosen on the Fargo Forum All-City Team.

The game which proved to be the most thrilling was the one played against Hankinson at Wahpeton. It not only gave the fans some thrilling moments but one could tell that the boys were also tense and excited, for this game would be a deciding factor in whether or not they would be conference champions, but alas, the worry was in vain, for the boys with their quick thinking defeated the Pirates with a 26 - 12 victory.

As fall faded and winter advanced, thoughts of homecoming were in the minds of many. The theme being Indian Summer, the pep squad decorated the gym with walls of fall colors and with a blue and white ceiling.

Queen Phyllis Burner was escorted to her throne by co-captains, Gregory Sprecher and Duane Flick. Her attendants were Mary Ann Van Eeckhout, freshman; Mary Cavegn, sophomore; and Merilyn Hanson, junior. Music was provided by Lloyd Keller and his orchestra.

The junior float won first prize and the senior float came in second. The parade was praised as being better than ever before.

The score of the homecoming game was a convincing 48 - 18.
